2 MARINES KILLED, 3 INJURED IN AUTO CRASH AT QUANTICO

Party of Four Hit While Parked by Road on Way to Camp.

DRIVER OF OTHER CAR, HURT, ORDERED HELD

Two Found Unconscious by Demolished Machines; Stopped to Fix Tire.

Two United States marines were killed and three others injured in an automobile crash near the marine camp at Quantico, Va., about 9:30 o'clock last night.

The marines killed were Private William Jones Orman, 23 years old, of Worcester, Mass., and Private Wilbur Albert Duchman, 23 years old, of Patterson, N. Y.

The injured are Private Wallace Axford, of Hubbell, Mich.; Private L. A. Scott, of Metropolis, Ill., and Marine Gunner Charles H. Euton, Axford was reported to be in a critical condition.

The two men who were killed, together with Axford and Scott, were grouped about an automobile that was parked along the government-owned road that lies between Quantico and the little town of Triangle, about 1 1/2 miles from the marine camp. Marine Gunner Euton was driving the automobile which struck their machine.

Two Found Unconscious.

The impact hurled the parked machine against a bank and threw the occupants some distance away. The marines who discovered the accident found the bodies of Orman and Duchman about 20 yards apart. Scott and Axford were unconscious.

The marine camp was notified and ambulances were sent to the scene. Orman and Duchman were pronounced dead on arrival at the camp hospital. Axford was found to be suffering from serious internal injuries and Scott had suffered a broken leg.

Marine Gunner Euton suffered lacerations on the face. He was ordered held pending an investigation which will start today.

Both Cars Demolished.

Col. C. T. Westcott, post inspector at Quantico, endeavored to learn the details of the accident from Axford and Scott, but because of their condition he decided to wait until morning.

Both automobiles were demolished by the crash. The four marines in the one machine were returning to the camp from Triangle when the accident occurred.

Ottawa, Ontario, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Premier Meighen, whose conservative party failed to obtain a majority in the general elections, has announced his intention to resign, with the members of his cabinet, on Monday.

Mrs. McPherson's Arrest With 4 Others Ordered

Evangelist and Mother Will Surrender Today on Charge of Obstructing Justice by Kidnaping Story. Ormiston May Aid Prosecution.

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Arrest of Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus temple evangelist; Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, her mother; Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus temple radio operator; John Doe Martin, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sleaff was ordered late today by District Attorney Asa Keyes.

Complaints charging the five persons with conspiracy to defeat justice were formally ordered by the district attorney. Deputy District Attorneys E. J. Dennison, Harold L. Davis and E. J. Likely were instructed to draw the complaints.

The complaints will bear the signature of Charles Reimer, assistant chief of detectives under Keyes, and service of them is entrusted to Ben Cohn, chief of the district attorney's detectives tomorrow morning.

Cohn will serve the warrants on Mrs. McPherson tomorrow at Angelus temple, it was announced.

Ormiston, according to his attorney, S. S. Hahn, will accept service of the warrant here in Los Angeles. Hahn, in conference with District Attorney Keyes, said that he would produce Ormiston immediately. He indicated that he had been in touch with the former radio operator near Alhambra, a suburb of Los Angeles. Orders for the five arrests grew out of a third official investigation into the strange case of the disappearance of the evangelist May 18, at Ocean Park, near here, and her reappearance June 23, at Douglas, Ariz., with a story of having been kidnapped.

Elements of this third investigation were revelations by Mrs. Wiseman-Sleaff that she had been furnished money from Angelus temple in efforts to produce a woman to be identified as an occupant of a cottage at Carmel, Calif., immediately after the evangelist's disappearance, to show that it was not Mrs. McPherson who occupied the cottage, and revelations by Miss Bernice Morris that money had been paid from the temple in an apparent effort to manufacture evidence to support the kidnaping story.

Counsel for Angelus temple informed the district attorney that Mrs. McPherson and her mother would be surrendered as soon as (CONTINUED ON PAGE 5, COLUMN 3.)

FIRST COMMERCE SITE FAVORED BY ARTS BODY

Location, Bounded by Pennsylvania Avenue, 14th, 15th and B Streets Urged.

BATHING POOLS PLACED RICHARDS TO CARRY ON

The new Commerce building will be built in its originally designated location, which is in the blocks bounded by Pennsylvania avenue, Fourteenth, Fifteenth and B streets, so far as the commission of fine arts is concerned. The commission made a decision last night relative to the location of the building, and it will be presented to the public building commission possibly Monday.

This decision automatically settles the controversy between the Department of Agriculture and the Commerce Department over contemplated use of the site of the former greenhouses as an alternative site for the $10,000,000 building at B street, between Twelfth, Fourteenth and the Mall. It also disposes of another prospective site for the building on Pennsylvania avenue, Seventh and Tenth streets and the Mall.

The decision is understood to include retention of the patent office building, Seventh, Ninth, G and F streets, and calls for exclusion of scientific bureaus from the projected Commerce building.

It was announced by the commission that it studied the central portion of the proposed new Agriculture building and that it is of the

M'ADOO STAR WANES AS DEMOCRATS TURN TO FAVORITE SONS

TO DAUGHERTY PART OF CAMPAIGN FUND

Doom of Two-Thirds Rule Will Avert Deadlock in Convention.

CLAN VOTE DECLINE SHOWN IN PRIMARY

Wilson Crown Prince Influence Lost Among Texas and Missouri Leaders.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.
The fortunes of William G. McAdoo, citizen by birth and choice of Tennessee, New York and California, apparently no longer form the focal point around which any discussion of Democratic presidential possibilities centers.

Three political happenings, two of them this week, have convinced Democratic leaders that the boom of the Wilson lieutenant can never assume the proportions it did in 1924, when it brought about the stalemate of Madison Square Garden.

In consequence the Democratic tendency now is to look for the man who can gather the party bone and sinew that will be needed when it becomes a case of the field against Gov. Al Smith, of New York.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland; Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri; Atlee Pomerene, of Ohio, and a score of other willing candidates occupy this position now.

The three factors which have done so much to deflate the McAdoo movement are the announcement yesterday that a preponderant majority of the Democratic national committee favors the abolition of the two-thirds rule in the selection of the Democratic presidential candidate; the loss of strength shown by the clan at the ballot box in the primaries, which have just drawn to a close, and the certainty that McAdoo will lack the support of Texas and Missouri in the next convention and may even face a split delegation from California, which he now terms his home State.

Two-Thirds Rule Doomed.

The almost certain abolition of the two-thirds rule, coupled with the strength that McAdoo has lost in Texas and Missouri, prevent a repetition, Democratic leaders here say, of the deadlock which kept the Democratic convention at Madison Square Garden in session and up-roar for such a long time in 1924.

The 40 votes of Texas controlled by Dan Moody, the conqueror of Gov. Miriam Ferguson and her consort, Jim Ferguson, will certainly not be cast in favor of the former Secretary of the Treasury.

The 36 votes in Missouri, which were steadfast in their allegiance to McAdoo in 1924, will be cast for Senator Jim Reed in 1928, politicians from that State declare.

Defeat of candidates with clan support in both the Republican and Democratic parties have set congressional leaders thinking. The opinion is that the order has shed some of the strength that it enjoyed when secrecy was its guiding principle, and that since it has come (CONTINUED ON PAGE 4, COLUMN 5.)

Hill Asks Recount In Several Counties

(By the Associated Press.)
Baltimore, Md., Sept. 16.—Representative John Philip Hill tonight instructed his attorneys in several Maryland counties to file petitions for a recount in his primary contest with United States Senator O. E. Weller for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Tonight, after the election boards in all but two or three of the counties had finished their canvass of the returns, Weller had won the State convention votes of 17 of the 23 counties in the State and 7 of the votes in Baltimore city—86 in all. Hill had won the votes of 6 counties and 35 in Baltimore—61 in all. Seventy-four votes in the convention are necessary for nomination.

Ship Sinks After Collision; Fate of Crew Is Unknown

London, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—The Italian steamer Ellenia sank to the bottom of the ocean today off the British coast, but what has become of her crew remains a mystery.

The first report to Lloyd's that all hands were lost appears to have been premature, for the steamer Homer, which hurried to the rescue of the sinking steamer, reports the possibility that the crew were picked up, as numerous fishing craft were in the vicinity, but no word has been heard of them as yet.

The Belgian steamer Indier reports finding an empty lifeboat.

The disaster was due to a collision between the Ellenia and the British steamer Induna, which, although damaged, was able to continue.

The Ellenia sailed from Norfolk September 1.

POLICEWOMAN CLEARED OF VAN WINKLE CHARGES

Trial Board Exonerates Mrs. Louise F. Kelly, Accused by Head of Bureau.

10 WITNESSES BACK ALIBI

Mrs. Louise F. Kelly, policewoman, was found not guilty of charges of having neglected her duty and of giving false statements to her superior officers by the police trial board yesterday. The charges were preferred by Lieut. Mina Van Winkle, head of the woman's bureau. Mrs. Kelly presented a strong defense and an almost perfect alibi, which was substantiated by ten witnesses, several of whom were members of the police department.

This is the first time in the history of the woman's bureau that charges have been brought against one of its staff by the commanding officer. Mrs. Van Winkle has heretofore fought tooth and nail for her aids when they have faced inquiry or possible censure. Mrs. Kelly was the first policewoman in Washington, having been appointed a special aid by Maj. Pullman before the woman's bureau was established. She has been declared one of the most efficient workers of the bureau in the detection of shoplifters by several department store heads.

Lieut. Van Winkle charged that Mrs. Kelly had been riding in an automobile with a man when she had been assigned to foot patrol duty. She declared that she saw Mrs. Kelly riding in an automobile across Connecticut avenue bridge, and that she had ordered the driver of the taxi in which she was driving to turn and follow the car. She gave a detailed account of the route taken by the car until it finally reached a house in Sixth street near (CONTINUED ON PAGE 2, COLUMN 2.)

ORDERS SESQUI SHUT UNDER ACT OF 1794

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—The Sesquicentennial exposition was ordered by the Dauphin county court today to close on Sundays, but Mayor Kendrick announced it would remain open pending an appeal.

The court held that the exposition is "worldly employment," that it is not work of necessity or charity, and that the amusements and recreations within the grounds are clearly in violation of the Sunday blue laws of 1794. The action was brought by the State of Pennsylvania, the attorney general contending that the Centennial association, by operating commercial features on Sunday, exceeded its charter rights. The State also pointed out that the legislature appropriated $750,000 for the State's participation in the Sesquicentennial on condition that it should be conducted "in strict conformity with Sunday observance."

AMERICAN IS SLAIN BY BAND IN MEXICO AS TROOPS PURSUE

Rosenthal Put to Death After Ruse to Seize His Captors Fails.

BODY IS RECOVERED; BEARS STAB WOUNDS

Soldiers, Carrying Iron Instead of Gold for Ransom, Kill Two Brigands.

PUNISHMENT OF GUILTY DEMANDED BY KELLOGG

Officials Here Believe Calles Has Shown Good Faith in the Affair.

Mexico City, Sept. 16 (By A. P.). Jacob Rosenthal, an aged American, was stabbed to death by his bandit captors on Wednesday night when Federal troops, seeking to rescue Rosenthal, closed in on the bandits.

Having failed to receive the $10,000 ransom demanded and being hampered in their flight by their aged captive, the criminals killed him rather than let him be rescued alive by the Federal troops with whom they were engaged in a running fight, after a ruse to trap the outlaws failed.

The tragedy occurred in a wild country less than 40 miles from Mexico City. The Federal troops had tracked down the bandit gang and killed two of them, when the pursuit was halted by the recovery of Rosenthal's body. Later the pursuit was resumed. The bandits are believed to form only a small group.

Officials admitted in Mexico City after news of the murder had reached here, that ransom had been demanded and that it was planned to trap the bandits by pretending to send the money. Soldiers were posted to capture the bandits when they appeared but the ruse failed.

Stab Wounds on Body.

Rosenthal's body bore many stab wounds.

It was taken to Cuernavaca by his son-in-law, Joseph Ruff, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Zahler. It will be brought to Mexico City to await the arrival of his wife, who now is on her way here from New York.

The troops have been ordered to redouble their efforts to exterminate the bandits. The American officials are convinced that the Mexican government made every effort possible to rescue Rosenthal and capture the outlaws.

Arthur Lane, American embassy secretary, narrowly escaped the outlaws. Leaving Cuernavaca five minutes behind the party which was attacked, Lane was warned to turn back by Edward Quirk, an American, who had just run the gauntlet of the bandits. Lane was later escorted to Mexico City by a detachment of troops.

Wrote That He Was Ill.

A letter was received yesterday from Rosenthal by Joseph Ruff, who turned it over to the American embassy. Rosenthal wrote that he was very ill, that he had to sleep in the rain and had suffered from exposure. He asked that the ransom of 20,000 pesos be sent quickly.

With Rosenthal's note, the bandits, in Spanish, gave instructions that messengers with the gold should meet them at a certain spot.

Gen. Robert Cruz, chief of the police of the federal district, ordered that soldiers in civilian dress should proceed as messengers, carrying a sack with pieces of iron instead of gold. Elaborate plans were prepared to capture the bandit envoys as soon as they appeared and force them to guide the soldiers to the bandit camp.

Were to Kill Bandits on Spot.

Gen. Cruz's instructions were issued in the presence of Arthur Lane, secretary of the embassy, and included orders to "take necessary measures upon finding the bandits," which meant to kill them on the spot.

Just how the plan miscarried is not explained, but the embassy today received a message from the headquarters of Gen. Cruz, merely saying that the federal troops, closely pursuing the bandits, had killed two of them, whereupon the other bandits stabbed and killed Rosenthal and escaped.

New York, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Plans have been made to stop Mrs. Sarah Rosenthal, widow of Jacob Rosenthal, from leaving the city.

MIDSHIPMAN ZIRKLE, CHANGING HIS MIND, TO GET COMMISSION

Secretary Wilbur Orders That Graduate Be Made Ensign on Taking Oath.

CONDUCT EXEMPLARY ON SUMMER CRUISE

Has Been at Academy, Where, in June, He Refused Rank in Navy.

Having changed his mind and indicated a willingness to accept an ensign's commission, Midshipman Earl Blair Zirkle, of Kansas, will be given an opportunity to take the oath of allegiance and receive a commission, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur directed yesterday.

The midshipman caused wide notoriety by refusing to take the oath and accept a commission on graduation from the U. S. Naval Academy last June.

Secretary Wilbur said Zirkle would be sent to a battleship for duty immediately on acceptance of his commission and that after his two years' service, a request for resignation would be considered according to rule.

Motive Not Made Public.

The Secretary could not say whether Zirkle's change of mind was actuated by a sincere desire to enter service or get himself out of his present predicament.

Following his graduation and refusal to accept a commission, Zirkle was sent to the midshipmen's cruise on which, it was announced officially yesterday, his behavior was excellent. At the expiration of the cruise, he refused to take a 30 days' leave of absence given all graduating midshipmen prior to assignment to duty and remained at Annapolis to await a decision in his case.

Since his return to the academy he had a conference with Rear Admiral L. McK. Nulton, its superintendent, who made an investigation of the case and reported the matter to Secretary Wilbur. Zirkle, it is understood, expressed a change of mind at this conference.

Alternative for Zirkle.

Secretary Wilbur indicated that in the event Zirkle continued to refuse a commission he would serve two years as a midshipman with midshipman's pay.

Secretary Wilbur last night sent the following letter to the superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, in regard to leaving a commission to Midshipman Zirkle:

"The Secretary of the Navy directs that if Midshipman Earl Zirkle now desires to accept a commission in the navy that the commission be assigned, originally tendered to him on graduation in June, 1926, and which is now being held at the Naval Academy, be delivered to him and that he be given the oath as an ensign in the United States navy."

POLICEWOMEN CLASH BEFORE TRIAL BOARD

L street southwest, where Mrs. Kelly was alleged to have alighted and to have entered. After a stay of about 25 minutes, Mrs. Van Winkle testified, Mrs. Kelly again entered the automobile and went for another ride, which is said to have terminated at a drug store near Dupont circle.

Mrs. Van Winkle caused a sensation when she flatly refused to answer a question of Bertrand Emerson, attorney for the defense. She was asked to describe the clothing of Mrs. Kelly on that night.

Sgt. Rhoda Milliken, of the woman's bureau, also testified that she had seen Mrs. Kelly riding in an automobile, William H. Jones, driver of the taxicab, said that he drove Mrs. Van Winkle on the night of June 25, but could not identify Mrs. Kelly. Another witness, Anna Brown, colored, who said she "helped" Mrs. Van Winkle in her police business at times, although she received no pay or compensation, was unable to identify Mrs. Kelly.

Mrs. Kelly declared that on June 25 she had gone to a house in Sixth street to interview a girl who had been assaulted and that she met Precinct Detective Burke, of the Fourth precinct, and Sgt. Lee, of the Fourth precinct, and that they had put her on a street car to return to the uptown district. Her account of her movements on that night were closely checked by the accounts of Burke, Lee, Sgt. Munday, and Privates Patrick Lynch, William M. Paeur and Emmett Bateman.

Stephanie Kelly, 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Kelly, testified to her mother's movements on June 21, and at the conclusion of her testimony, broke into tears. She was led to a seat in the rear where she was comforted by Dr. Jane B. Coates, who also testified to Mrs. Kelly's movements on that night. Emerson objected strenuously to Mrs. Van Winkle's frequent interruptions of testimony and demanded that she be required to keep quiet. He rested his case on the defense evidence presented and said that he did not feel it necessary to present an argument.

CLUB NAMES GROUP FOR MARKET STUDY

Heated Cosmopolitan Discussion Sends Site Question to Special Committee.

A heated discussion concerning the proposed location of the new market, caused the Cosmopolitan club at the Lee house last night to refer the matter to a special committee headed by Ralph Goldsmith. Frank Ghiselli said the market should be located on the site advocated by the Mid-City Citizens association, Fifth and K streets northwest. He said the market should be brought to the people. Advocates of the Southwest site said the market should be taken to the railroads.

Following a motion by Philip Buettner, the club decided to hold an attendance contest. George Lucke, chairman of the golf committee, reported the Washington club will visit Norfolk, Va., October 9 and 10, to engage in a golf match with the latter club. Announcement was made that a club in Alexandria, Va., will be installed September 25. Boster prizes were awarded George McCloskey and Wooten Young. Plans are being made for a ladies' night next month. Donors for the next meeting will be Harry Hobart and Dr. Edward Brown.

HIERARCHY ORDERS PASTORAL LETTER ON MEXICAN ISSUE

Catholic Side of Controversy to Be Read at Every Mass Said in Country.

INTERVENTION BY U. S. NOT TO BE SUGGESTED

University Trustees Increased to 45; Scholarships to Honor J. K. Mullen.

A pastoral letter to familiarize the American people with the Catholic side of the Mexican religious controversy will be issued soon by the Catholic hierarchy of the United States.

Having decided on such a letter yesterday, the cardinals, archbishops and bishops comprising the hierarchy departed for their respective dioceses. They had been in session at Catholic university since Wednesday morning.

The message sent to the Mexican Catholics the day before was simply a message of sympathy. It was explained yesterday. The pastoral letter, it was said, will go into the history of the religious controversy and will outline the fundamental and constitutional principles involved. There will be in it no suggestion that the United States government interfere in the situation.

Five to Compose Letter.

The letter will be composed by a committee of five prelates and will then be sent to the other members of the hierarchy for their approval. Patrick Cardinal Hayes, of New York, heads the committee, which further includes Archbishop John J. Glennon, of St. Louis; Archbishop Austin Dowling, of St. Paul, Minn.; Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland, and Bishop Francis Kelley, of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Great importance is attached to a pastoral letter, and for that reason they are issued but seldom. When the forthcoming letter is issued it will be read at every mass in every Catholic church in the United States.

The hierarchy yesterday re-elected as the administrative committee of the National Catholic Welfare conference Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, of San Francisco; Archbishop Austin Dowling, of St. Paul; Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland; Bishop Philip McDevitt, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Bishop Thomas F. Lillis, Kansas City, Mo.; Bishop P. J. Muldoon, of Rockford, Ill.; and Bishop Edward F. Gibbons, of Albany, N. Y.

More Trustees for University.

The hierarchy decided to increase the number of trustees of Catholic university from 20 to 45 and the following committee was appointed to make nominations: Archbishop A. B. Messmer, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Archbishop John J. Glennon, of Albany, N. Y.; Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore; Bishop Francis Kelley, of Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The board of trustees directed that ten scholarships be awarded by Catholic university to students in Colorado, in honor of John K. Mullen, millionaire of Denver, who donated a $750,000 library to the university.

HEBREW YOM KIPPUR BEGINS AT SUNDOWN

Holiest Period of Jewish Religious Year to Last Until Trumpets Tomorrow.

Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, the holiest day in the Jewish religious calendar, begins at sundown today.

Special services with elaborate musical programs have been arranged for all Washington synagogues, beginning tonight and continuing through tomorrow. During the holy period all loyal Hebrews, orthodox and reform, will abstain from business and pleasure. Fast-ing also will be observed by the more devout Jews.

The day of atonement brings to an end the Hebrew holy season which began ten days ago with celebration of Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year. At the conclusion of services tomorrow a sound of trumpets will announce the holy season is over. Worshipers then will go to their homes for a holiday feast.

Priests Play With Peril In Cruel Arctic Wastes

Bishop Crimont, Who Came Out of Alaska to Attend Catholic Meetings, Tells of Bitter Struggle of Adventurous Missionaries.

The bishop with the largest diocese in the United States, perhaps in the world, is in Washington for the meeting of the Catholic hierarchy. He is the Rt. Rev. J. R. Crimont, of Juneau, Alaska, whose domain stretches across 600,000 square miles in the Northwest.

Bishop Crimont tells amazing stories of missionaries in the land of the midnight sun. Priests there must be hunters and voyagers, strong and willing to suffer and sacrifice.

Father Bellarmine La Fortune, one of eighteen Jesuits in Alaska, is the most colorful of the missionaries, according to the bishop. Famed for his endurance and woodlore, Father La Fortune is known from one end of the country to the other. He speaks the language of the Eskimo and the Indian, the bishop said, and can live with the same frugality that they do.

Then there is the famous Father Julius Jette, son of a former Quebec governor, who scored a professor's chair in the University of Winnipeg to work in the frozen wastes.

FAMILY CLASH COSTS JOHN BROSNAN, JR., $20

Fight With Brother-in-Law Sends Provident Relief Contestant to Police Court.

John Brosnan, jr., of the Provident Relief association, was fined $20 yesterday by Judge Macdonald in police court on a charge of assaulting his brother-in-law, Joseph A. Meinberg, of 64 Adams street northwest. Brosnan noted his intention of asking for a writ of error.

According to the testimony, Meinberg passed Brosnan's home, 68 Adams street northwest, en route to the grocery store on Labor day. He was carrying two milk bottles. Brosnan, who was whistling a German song, Meinberg is said to have turned around and called "Shut up, you jailbird." Brosnan is then said to have attacked Meinberg and to have knocked him to the sidewalk.

The milk bottles were broken and Brosnan is said to have been cut with the jagged end of one of the bottles.

Each swore out a warrant charging the other with assault. Judge Macdonald said that he had known the entire family for a long time and that they had always been fine people until the outbreak of the recent argument over the disposition of the estate left the elder Brosnan.

He dismissed the charge against Meinberg.

The Manor club will inaugurate its fall season tomorrow, when a water pageant will be held at the club's swimming pool, with Davy Jones and old Neptune as special guests. W. E. Longfellow will play the part of Neptune, while Capt. Guy Winkler will appear as Davy Jones.

In the afternoon a Scotch four-some golf tournament will be held on the club links. There will be bridge at the clubhouse, and a special dinner and dance in the evening. The water pageant program was arranged by H. F. Enlow, Stanley Willis, Dr. J. W. Bird and C. M. Wright.

The Episcopal Church home, Wisconsin avenue and Macomb street, will be dedicated by Bishop James E. Freeman at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Music will be furnished by a section of the Marine band, and an inspection of the home will follow the dedication ceremony. The public has been invited.

The home, which now has 15 residents, was established in 1924. It was donated by Mrs. Cornelia Jones, who had used it as a residence. Last spring the board of governors purchased an adjoining lot, thus putting the home in possession of the entire corner.

Sneak Thief Invades House Office Building

The House office building yesterday was entered by a sneak thief, who stole a leather handbag containing money and checks, totaling approximately $220, from Mrs. Stella P. Green, secretary to Representative Frank C. Clague, of Minnesota.

Mrs. Green, who was alone in the office, left and returned within five minutes. But the short space of time proved ample enough to allow the thief to operate. She notified police and Detectives Thomas D. Walsh and Richard Mansfield investigated.

GERMANY FORGOES ITS

Poland Is Made Eligible for

Vote Is Only 10.

Geneva, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—The new council of the League of Nations, enlarged today to fourteen members by election in the assembly, and having present Dr. Gustav Stresemann as the representative of the German republic, began its forty-second session with an act of homage to Woodrow Wilson as founder of the league.

This homage took the form of accepting in advance a bust of the late President, which will be presented to the league by Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Caldwell, of New York. It will be executed by Bryant Baker, the American sculptor, and it is understood will receive the approval of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson before being placed in the palace of the League of Nations.

Ten Votes for Ireland.

The States chosen for the non-permanent seats in the new council are Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Colombia, Chile, Salvador, Holland and China. Though the Irish Free State had announced its candidacy for a seat to represent the British dominions in the council, it received only 10 votes. Colombia received 45 out of a total of 49. Dr. Eduard Benes, president of the council, made a plea for concord, sincerity and collaboration in the furtherance of the high aims of the league. After extending a warm welcome to Germany, whose admission, he said, meant so much to the future destiny of Europe, Dr. Benes declared that there were no plans, no en-

Ownership of the Air Above House Is Issue

Special to The Washington Post.
Chicago, Sept. 16.—An important decision, interesting many thousands of radio listeners and operators throughout the country, is expected in the superior court tomorrow, when the suit for $1,000 damages, brought by Norman T. Bremner, against his landlord, Jacob Lowenberg, is called for final settlement.

This suit, typical of many others, grows out of the "right of the air" over Lowenberg's apartment building. Bremner erected an aerial on the roof of the apartment house for his radio. Soon after, Fred Markoe, a radio engineer, moved into the same building and installed a 1,000-watt transmitting set, which, when operated, put Bremner's receiving apparatus entirely out of business.

Landlord Lowenberg refused to interfere.

Bremner, backed by the Broadcast Listeners' association, brought suit.

trenched camps, no opposing factions in the council, but only men whose pulse must ever beat to the fulfillment of the high aim of putting into practice the fundamental principles of the covenant of the league.

Teuton Reigns Rights.

The council decided to push forward the project for the establishment of an Armenian national home. It adopted a resolution that the council would promote the settlement of the Armenian refugees in Erivan when the necessary $7,000,000 was subscribed by Armenian organizations and charitable organizations generally, and would devote the league organization to helping the project of a national home.

Dr. Stresemann laid aside his right to preside over the council, and thereby created an atmosphere of cordial reception, and left saying the issue in the "Thirty-eighth administration, the tariff and prosperity."

For Mr. Cuff it was said the visit would help him greatly in his contest against Representative Jacob Stein, Democrat, who won two years ago by over 30,000 and for the President it was said he was glad to receive a call of respect of a Republican candidate from a neighboring county.

Many Stops on Trip Aided.

Word that Mr. Coolidge plans to leave the Adirondack Saturday has spread far and wide with the result that many invitations are being received at the executive offices for him to stop at stations along the route, especially as he crosses New York State in daylight.

Residents of this vicinity also are planning to be out in force to bid him farewell from here.

Whether any special stops can be made by his special train has not been announced, but it is understood the decision will rest largely with the flexible possibilities of the railroad schedule, which would be slowed down by any great number of stops.

The President passed the morning at the executive offices, but in the afternoon was at White Pine camp, as furniture and office supplies were being packed at the offices for shipping to Washington.

A heavy downpour of rain continued here all day.

Newspaper correspondents who have accompanied the President to the Adirondacks were the guests of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid for luncheon at her camp on Upper St. Regis lake.

Paul Smiths, N. Y., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Conditions in New York State with special reference to the Thirty-eighth congressional district were outlined to President Coolidge today by James E. Cuff, Republican candidate for Congress in that district, and a delegation of Republican leaders from Monroe county and Rochester who were received at the executive offices.

The call was described as one of respect and as having no special significance insofar as the policy of the President toward State fights was concerned, but the delegation afterward commended warmly upon their "cordial reception," and left saying the issue in the "Thirty-eighth administration, the tariff and prosperity."

For Mr. Cuff it was said the visit would help him greatly in his contest against Representative Jacob Stein, Democrat, who won two years ago by over 30,000 and for the President it was said he was glad to receive a call of respect of a Republican candidate from a neighboring county.

Compulsory Sports End German College Duels

Special to The Washington Post.
New York, Sept. 16.—Soccer, tennis and handball are taking the place of dueling and beer drinking in German universities, according to six students who arrived today on the North German Lloyd liner Seydlitz. They are here for a year's study in various colleges under the auspices of the American-German students' exchange.

Sports are compulsory in German universities, they stated, and no one can win a degree without courses in physical training.

Dr. Walther Kayser, of Freyburg university, who will specialize in history at the University of Cincinnati, said that in politics the students are neither partisan republicans nor monarchists, but favorable to the system which proves best for the country.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—Vincent Vitall, 21, jumped off the Delaware River bridge today and drowned. The body was recovered by a patrol boat of the harbor police, after three hours of grappling by several boats.

The diver left nothing behind to identify him but a coat, and through this his address in this city was learned. On a card in a pocket of the coat were found these words printed on it: "Delaware River bridge jump performed by Vincent Vitall, known as the high jumper, 220 S. 8th st., Philadelphia. Other jumps: Galveston, Tex., grain elevator and Berkeley bridge, Norfolk, Va."

Today's tragedy is the fifteenth from the new span, but the first since the bridge opened, July 1. Vitall's family resides in Greensboro, N. C.

HALL-MILLS WITNESSES MAY FACE INDICTMENTS

Recall of April Grand Jury Is Asked; Trial Panel From Outside Is Sought.

COURT TO HEAR REQUEST

Somerville, N. J., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Recall of the April grand jury to consider indicting "three or four" Hall-Mills murder witnesses and authorization for trial of the four persons indicted for the slaying before a jury from another county, were sought today by State Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor.

Request for recall of the jury which yesterday indicted Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, her brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, and her cousin, Henry Carpenter, for the murder four years ago of the Rev. Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills was made to Prosecutor Bergen, of this county. Senator Simpson would not name the "three or four" persons he had in mind, nor would he indicate whether the jury whose term expires Monday, would be in session tomorrow.

Moves for an outside jury to hear the evidence against the four accused persons were made at a conference in Trenton, where Simpson discussed his proposal with Chief Justice Gummere and Supreme Court Justice Parker. The cases will be tried before the latter.

At the conclusion of the conference, it was announced that Simpson's formal petition for such a jury would be heard in the supreme court Thursday next.

"It is impossible," Simpson asserted, "to obtain a fair trial in Somerset or any other county contiguous to Trenton, where Simpson's formal petition for such a jury would be heard in the supreme court Thursday next."

Some people resent, while others applaud the reopening of the case. In New Jersey trials must take place in the county in which the indictments are returned. Therefore, all I can get is a foreign jury."

Fight on World Court By Woman Is Balked

Chicago, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—An effort by Mary Belle Spencer, Chicago woman attorney, to have American entry into the world court declared unconstitutional, was balked today in Federal court when Judge James H. Wilkerson told Mrs. Spencer he doubted if the court had jurisdiction.

She appeared to argue on a motion for an order restraining the Secretary of the Treasury from paying the United States' share of the court's expenses. Judge Wilkerson advised her to bring the action in a Federal court in the District of Columbia, where service could be had on the Secretary of the Treasury. He granted her until September 27, however, to prepare arguments to show that the Federal court here had jurisdiction.

FONCK FLIGHT UNLIKELY BEFORE COMING WEEK

Leak in Gasoline Tank and Storm Reports Cause 2
Postponements.

CONFERENCE ON TODAY

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Ill luck, which has shadowed the Sikorsky biplane S-35 in several guises, has caused another postponement of its scheduled hop-off on the projected nonstop flight from New York to Paris.

After a leak in one of the gasoline tanks had caused a last-minute postponement of the hop-off this morning, the date for departure was reset for tomorrow morning, only to be postponed a few hours later when government weather reports were received, telling of threatening storms over the Grand Banks of New Foundland. Officials in charge of the flight arrangements also said it was unlikely that a start could be made Saturday because of the weather outlook.

The leak that prevented the flight today was caused by a hole the size of a pencil. The plane already had been taken from its hangar to the field and final preparations for the start were nearly completed when the leak was discovered.

The storm, which caused postponement of tomorrow's proposed take-off said that east-northeast winds probably reaching gale force, were expected in the area of the Grand Banks tomorrow and Saturday. A conference of the officials will be held tomorrow afternoon to determine whether a hop off will be ventured Saturday.

It will be necessary to wait for a high "cleared-out" area over the North Atlantic beyond the Grand Banks.

The leak, mechanics of the plane said, could be repaired in a few minutes after the gasoline tank affected has been drained.

ROSENTHAL KILLING TERMED THE MOST FLAGRANT IN YEARS

Anti-Americanism Said to Be Encouraged by Calles and Followers.

OUTRAGE PERPETRATED
CLOSE TO THE CAPITAL

American Seized on One of Most-Traveled Roads in Southern Republic.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The Mexican situation took a serious turn yesterday when word was flashed to the State Department here that Jacob Rosenthal, wealthy New York man, was brutally murdered by Mexicans near the Mexican capital. The following dispatch, from H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, American charge d'affaires at the embassy in Mexico City, was made public late yesterday by Secretary of State Kellogg:

"The inspector general of police has shown the embassy two telegrams from federal officials at Cuernavaca stating that two of the bandits were killed at 10 o'clock last night by a pursuing force, but that the other bandits fled and beat Rosenthal to death. The federal official states that no efforts will be spared to apprehend and punish the remaining members of the band."

On Well-Traveled Road.

Rosenthal was returning from a week-end pleasure trip at Cuernavaca over one of the most traveled roads near the Mexican capital. In his automobile party were Jack J. Zahler, American resident of Mexico City; Mrs. Zahler and Joseph Ruff, Rosenthal's son-in-law. The automobile was stopped by Mexicans, who took Rosenthal, who was 60 years old, prisoner and warned the other Americans to keep quiet about the kidnapping. The other members of the party, who were released, expressed the belief that the Mexicans thought they had captured a member of the American embassy.

The particularly serious aspect to the case is the fact that murders of American citizens in Mexico so frequently follow strained relations between the Mexican government and the government of the United States, although so far American lives have been given more protection than under the times of diplomatic tension in the Wilson administration. One incident of this kind leads to another unless punishment is meted out. It is explained, and so far the Mexican government has failed in practically every instance to apprehend the guilty. In each instance the federal authorities report that the bandits are being pursued, or that several have been shot down, and then the matter drops after the usual expressions of regret on the part of the Mexican government.

Most Flagrant in Years.

Indications are that the present case is the most flagrant taking of an American life in years as the murder occurred within an hour of the automobile ride from the capital and under circumstances which do not permit the usual Mexican excuse that the federal government was unable to exercise its authority in a bandit-infested region. It was on this same road that A. Bruce Bielaski, formerly of the Department of Justice, was captured some years ago, but made his escape.

Action by the State Department here will be taken with a view to obtaining redress and at the same time holding the Mexican government responsible for the outrage. The brand of anti-Americanism which Calles and his followers have apparently encouraged in Mexico in the hope of increasing their own prestige with certain elements in their own country tends admittedly to encourage bandits and disorderly elements to believe that they can select Americans as their prey with impunity.

The holding of Americans for ransom was an outgrowth of the anti-American feeling encouraged by the Mexican authorities. But it is noted that bandit attacks on foreigners generally practically ceased after the murder in 1924 of Mrs. Evans, an American woman married to a British subject, caused the British government to hold the government of Mexico strictly accountable despite Mexico's plea that it was powerless to deal with the bandits.

Slayers Never Punished.

AMERICAN KILLED IN MEXICO BEFORE HIS KIDNAPERS FLEE

Rosenthal, who was killed yesterday by Mexican bandits, when she reaches St. Louis on her way to Mexico City. Alfred D. Lind, friend and attorney of Rosenthal, announced tonight that friends of the family will meet Mrs. Rosenthal at the railroad station with the news of her husband's death. Mrs. Rosenthal left for Mexico City Tuesday when word of her husband's kidnapping reached New York.

Kellogg Asks Punishment.

(By the Associated Press.) Secretary Kellogg last night instructed Charge Schoenfeld, at Mexico City, to make representations to the Calles government to leave no stone unturned in apprehending and punishing the slayers of Jacob Rosenthal, of New York.

The Secretary's action came shortly after the receipt of news from Mexico telling of the death of the American at the hands of the bandits.

It shows that the State Department is prepared to exert efforts to establish responsibility for the killing and to take a firm hand in demanding the punishment of those guilty.

While the text of the instructions was not made public, the brief announcement clearly shows that the Washington government feels that such an offense against its nationals warrants prompt action by the Mexican authorities.

G. O. P. FUND CHECKS APPEAR AT TRIAL OF DAUGHERTY

kin was questioned by Assistant United States Attorney Simpson. He identified three checks totaling $29,143.75. One of the checks was for $3,643.75 and was signed by King and payable to Smith. Another check, signed by King and payable to "cash," was offered in evidence. Durkin could not remember having seen it before. These checks were dated October 15, 1921, 13 days after the day Merton said he gave King $391,000 in liberty loan bonds.

The government alleged that these two checks represented coupon or interest value on liberty loan bonds amounting to $195,000. Durkin testified he had deposited liberty loan bond coupons on King's account.

The third check was for $25,000 and was dated August 1, 1921. It bore the signature of King and was payable to "cash." The date of the check approximated the date on which Merton said he gave King $50,000 as a "retainer."

The government alleges this check was a "split" of the $50,000 Merton said he paid King and that Jesse Smith, Daugherty's "man Friday," got the money. The date of this check approximates that on which Merton said he gave King a $50,000 "advance commission." Objections by defense attorneys kept this check from becoming a government exhibit.

Signature Not Identified.

Miss Vera Veal, for seventeen years an employee in the Midland National Bank at Washington Courthouse, Ohio, of which Daugherty's brother, Mal S. Daugherty, is president, could not identify the signature of Jesse W. Smith when called by the government.

A telegram was sent to Miller in Pittsburgh the day before the claims of the Societe Suisse were paid. Fred H. Wilson, secretary to Miller at the time he was alien property custodian, testified. The telegram said the claims had not been paid. The next day, Wilson said, a telegram was sent to Miller to Sewickley, Pa., advising him that the claims had been paid. Wilson identified copies of both telegrams and they were admitted as exhibits.

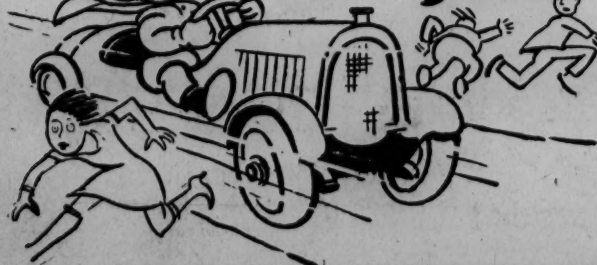

Under cross-examination by William Rand, counsel for Miller, Wilson said, telegrams about claims in investigation were frequently sent to Miller, or else he would be advised by telephone. The next day, Wilson said, a telegram was sent to Miller to Sewickley, Pa., advising him that the claims had been paid. Wilson identified copies of both telegrams and they were admitted as exhibits.

W. D. Miller, who described himself as butler and general utility administration and while Calles was a member of Obregon's cabinet. She had repeatedly asked the Mexican government for protection because of threats by communistic followers of Calles to take her property by force. When the local authorities failed to protect her and the Federal government sent no protection, she was killed by a band of men who were never punished.

But the British government instructed its charge d'affaires, Mr. Cummings, to insist upon holding the government of Mexico responsible and when that government resented the diplomat's insistence and ordered him from the country, Great Britain broke off diplomatic relations with Mexico and refused all further dealings until redress was obtained.

Pending further developments, State Department officials refused to forecast what additional steps might be necessary, but it was made clear that officials here believe the Calles government has shown good faith in its attempt to capture the brigands who were holding Rosenthal for ransom.

Yaku's Ambush Femals; Kill Most of the Battalion

Nogales, Ariz., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Dispatches to the Herald today from Guaymas, Sonora, Mexico, confirmed reports that a battalion of Mexican infantry had suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of Yaqui Indians south of Vienna.

The Yaquis, the dispatches said, ambushed the battalion, and killing the larger part, put the remainder to flight.

Although most of the telegraph facilities are in the hands of the military, the border today continued to depend upon persons returning from the restricted area for word of troop movements and encounters.

The military is advancing on the Sierra de Bacatete, Yaqui mountain stronghold, in small bodies. Gen. Francisco Manzo, Sonora corps area commander, is said to be leading a body of 4,000 soldiers from Vicam, with scouting parties numbering more than 500 men, executing a flank movement.

TEXAS INQUIRY VOTED INTO FERGUSON REGIME

Legislators Order Study of Woman Governor's Conduct of State Affairs.

NINE ON THE COMMITTEE

Austin, Tex., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Investigation of the administration of State departments under the regime of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson was ordered late today by the lower house of the Texas legislature, which is in special session. The vote was 104 to 22.

An appropriation of $25,000 was voted for the investigation which will be carried on by nine house members to be appointed by the speaker.

The resolution adopted provides specifically for an inquiry into the conduct of the State highway commission, the text book commission and the pardon board, all of which have come under the fire of Attorney General Dan Moody, who defeated Gov. Ferguson for nomination.

Investigation of the records of the treasury department and railroad commission to ascertain whether oil and sulphur companies are paying and have paid the full State gross production tax and of activities of members of both houses of the legislature before various State departments also is provided. The special session was called by Gov. Ferguson during the recent primary campaign "for the purpose of validating road bonds declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court of the United States and to investigate any State departments deemed necessary."

Action by the house in providing for a report to the next regular legislative session throws the investigation under the incoming regime of Moody, who will become governor next January. Gov. Ferguson had asked that any investigation be disposed of at the present special session.

MRS. STOCK ON TICKET BY NARROW MAJORITY

Canvass Gives Only Woman
Candidate Senate Nomination by 49-Vote Margin.

The supervisors of elections for Montgomery county yesterday canvassed the returns from Tuesday's Democratic and Republican primary elections in the county.

The official count of the Republican returns showed that Mrs. Mary T. Stock, of Bethesda, won the nomination for State senator by a plurality of but 49 votes. The unofficial returns, which, however, were incomplete, indicated that she had carried the county by a much wider margin.

The total vote received by each candidate was: Mrs. Stock, 1,004; Capt. Frank L. Hewitt, 955; John F. Selbert, 832.

The official count of the Democratic returns showed that the unofficial figures were virtually correct. The usual certificates of nomination will be issued in a few days.

Official Count Shows Garrison Renominated

Official tabulation of the votes cast in the Prince Georges county (Md.) primaries Tuesday revealed Thomas H. Garrison, of Hyattsville, a winner over Charles C. Stuart, of Bladensburg, for the Republican nomination for sheriff. Garrison had 1,360 votes as against 1,288 for Stuart, the organization candidate.

John T. Fisher, of Oxon Hill, was elected the sixth member to the Republican State central committee over Robert A. Washington, organization candidate. Fisher received 1,489 votes as against 1,288 for Washington.

Smoot Called Civil Service "Dictator"

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, is the "practical dictator" of the civil service bureau in Washington, Dr. Ellery C. Stowell, of Washington, told the assembly of civil service commissioners in an annual session here.

"Members of Congress, too, are interfering with the service to such an extent that citizens should organize to protect this important government service from being further hampered," added Mr. Stowell, who is president of the Better Government league in the National Capital. "It is shocking to find the Federal government more secretive about appointments than are the States and cities. I doubt if greater secrecy is practiced in bureaucratic Russia."

Many Other Callers.

Mr. Stowell then questioned the witness with the purpose of showing that King and Miller were only 2 of 30 persons who visited the H street house and who were on terms of friendship with the former Attorney General. When asked directly how many times Miller and King had visited the house from April 1 until September 30, 1921, he replied that he could not remember, but at "least half a dozen times."

The witness said that the Attorney General was extremely popular and that numerous persons, including senators, representatives and cabinet members, were as frequent and friendly guests at the H street house, as were Miller and King. He said that during this period nothing occurred to fix the visits of either Miller or King in his mind as being in any way unusual.

He said that during the occupation of the H street house Daugherty brought home papers every night and worked very late. He agreed with Mr. Stowell that Daugherty did "mighty little fidgeting away of time."

PRIMARIES INDICATE ECLIPSE OF M'ADOO

partially into the open with its aims and membership it has lost some of the fanatical devotion which its adherents gave it at first.

Democratic politicians have no intention of stirring the klan issue, but they no longer think that it will play the part that it did a year ago. Even in the South, where it might be expected that the State delegations will be klan dominated against Gov. Smith, party leaders have brought back the word that the instructions given the party representatives will more probably be anti-Smith rather than pro-klan.

Feud Will Be Continued.

With these influences all working against the rejuvenation of the McAdoo boom Democratic leaders say that the greatest strength which the Wilson heir presumptive can hope to gather will only be sufficient to prevent the Tammany-Sullivan alliance from putting over a stampede for Gov. Smith in the early days of the convention. No responsible Democratic leader is rash enough to predict that the feud has been ended. Politicians expect the battle between Gov. Smith and the opposition to be renewed with all the bitterness and hostility that marked it two years ago.

The situation, as it stands today, lends itself naturally to the ambitions of favorite sons and compromise candidates. With the two-thirds rule thrown into the discard, Democrats believe that it will be impossible to repeat the tragic farce of Madison Square, and that McAdoo's waning strength and the known and determined ferocity of the opposition to Gov. Smith may yield to some candidate who can draw more general support than either of the men who led the party to the suicidal deadlock of the last campaign.

BRITISH POLICE BATTLE MOB OF 2,000 MINERS

Women Join Strikers Making
Attack on Safety Men Who Are Working.

CABINET STUDIES ISSUE

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, Sept. 16.—Country police with heavy special reinforcements charged a mob of 2,000 strikers and their wives at Doncaster today in the first serious disturbance of the coal mine stoppage in more than a month.

Trouble has been brewing between the rank and file of miners and safety men in several districts. The latter, who are disgusted with the prolonged strike, are going back to work in defiance of the wishes of the unions. When the safety men were leaving the Doncaster pits, a mob of strikers singing the "Red Flag" assembled near the entrance and jeered and menaced them. When the safety men left the scene, stones were hurled at them and a fight started. Then the police charged the rioters and eventually dispersed them.

The cabinet met this afternoon to consider the coal question, but little progress was made toward formulating a plan for action.

In political circles the opinion is held that a scheme for district settlements subject to national ratification will be advanced. The idea is that local miners' leaders would determine wages and hours in accordance with local capacities and general local conditions. The country is expecting Prime Minister Baldwin to take firm action in aiding the stoppage and he is being called on by all parties except the Tory reactionaries to do so.

Of course, backing the conservative mine owners, not to permit the latter to suppress the miners' organizations, which is seen as their obvious aim.

Alleged Wife Slayer Attends Her Funeral

Luray, Va., Sept. 16.—Guarded by two deputy sheriffs, Herbert Crickenbarger, 27, yesterday attended the funeral of his wife, Mrs. Clara Crickenbarger, 34, of Lottsville. Crickenbarger is alleged to have shot and killed his wife when he returned home late at night. He is being held on the testimony of his 5-year-old son, who said "daddy shot mamma and then put the pistol back in his pocket."

Crickenbarger says that when he came home he handed his wife his revolver, asking her to remove the bullets; that he then went into an adjoining room and a moment later heard the report of the pistol. He said he found his wife in a chair with blood issuing from a wound in her head. At his wife's funeral Crickenbarger was deeply affected.

The Rev. Carleton Barnwell, rector of Grace, will become rector of St. Paul's church, there being a vacancy in that rectorship. Bishop R. C. Jett, who attended the meeting, favored the merger and new church. The action is to go into effect at once upon being approved by the Southwestern Virginia diocese.

Trills in High G Win Place For Girl at Opera Trials

Director Albion Sees Future Prima Donna in Dorothy
Davenport, Whose Phenomenal Voice Astounds
Him—Two Others Declared "Finds."

Dorothy Davenport, 1120 Ninth street northwest, 16-year-old Business High school student, proved the "find" at the voice trials conducted at the Washington auditorium yesterday to all possible canticans in the Washington Opera Company this winter.

Dorothy produced the surprise of the day when she not only reached high G but trilled it. And to be able to trill high G is something that many popular singers would give a moiety of their lives to be able to do.

The voice trials were proceeding in their usual course. One singer after another, some of whom had studied abroad, others of whom had studied a brief time here in Washington, ascended the stage, conscious that the moment was critical, and that their success or failure, in large probability, would mean success or failure in their ambition to reach the goal of a singer.

Then came a young girl in unbuttoned tresses—rather in long, flowing curls that dropped down her back. At first the usual scene was enacted. Next did it become unusual until Miss Davenport failed to stop when the high notes were reached, but mastered each succeeding one with equal ease.

Still she kept on. She had never studied music, and although she was undoubtedly conscious of doing well, nevertheless did not realize that she was doing anything phenomenal. Little did she know that Edward Albion, director of the company, was listening to her entrance.

When she reached high G, Mr. Albion exclaimed: "Where are you going?" She might have gone higher, he said afterward, but with danger to her health.

After her performance Dorothy explained that she could whistle, too, and proved it. In fact, she could whistle as well as many performers who are able to turn bird notes but it developed that this accomplishment came by gift alone, and by no set practice.

Her father is Charles Davenport.

opinion that it should be completed in accordance with the original design, which calls for a dome on the building.

Much business was transacted by the commission at its all-day session yesterday, the first of its fall meetings. Location of the new bathing pools authorized by Congress at its last session, as recommended by the Capital City and park planning commission, was approved.

These provide for the placement of the pool for white bathers in the new McKinley high school grounds at Second and T streets northeast, and one for colored bathers in the Rock Creek-Potomac Parkway section adjoining the new colored junior high school at Twenty-fourth and N streets northwest. The park and planning commission's location of sites for six other pools was also indicated.

The latter will be built at the following places: For whites, in East Potomac park at a place to be determined later; in Anacostia park on the east side of the river between the Anacostia and Pennsylvania avenue bridges; at MacFarland Junior High school or near the reservoir at the Rock Creek entrance, and at the John Burroughs school in Brookland. For colored: in Anacostia park and near the Cardozo school, between First and Half streets on I street northwest.

Tentative design for memorial chapels to be erected by Congress in American military cemeteries in Europe, submitted by the American battle monuments commission, will be considered hereafter by the commission. They provide for rest rooms and record offices in addition to chapel features.

Design for police station No. 14, at Tenleytown, calling for brick and stone structure of Georgian architecture, was approved and advice was given regarding the location of a bronze memorial tablet of the Grand Army of the Republic to be placed in Arlington National cemetery amphitheater. While the site of this tablet, commemorating the general order establishing Memorial day, will determine its position, the commission favors its erection at the entrance to the memorial room of the amphitheater.

In the afternoon the members of the commission inspected the Meade memorial in Botanic gardens and decided that it should be completed in accordance with approved plans before it is dedicated. These make provision for a platform and plaza about the statue.

In company with officials of the quartermaster general's office of the army, the commission also inspected the crypts of the Arlington cemetery amphitheater and expressed the opinion that they should be completed to harmonize with the amphitheater structure.

A sketch for the John Adams and John Quincy Adams memorial authorized by Congress, which will be erected at Quincy, Mass., by Bruce Saville, sculptor, of that city, was approved.

Lora Taft, sculptor, and member of the commission, only recently returned from Europe, attended yesterday's meeting and the commission had as its guest, William E. Parsons, Chicago architect, just back from Porto Rico, where he laid plans for the development of San Juan, the capital city.

Plans for a trip down the Potomac river by members of the National Capital park and planning commission will be made at its meeting today. The trip will be held October 14, the day before the October session of the commission, and members will be given an opportunity of studying parking plans in the vicinity of Fort Hunt, Va., and Washington, Md., which

FOREIGN COURTS TO STAY IN CHINA, POWERS DECIDE

Extraterritoriality Commission Finds Legal Chaos
Forbids Change.

STINGING REPORT SIGNED

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Peking, Sept. 16.—Delegates from thirteen countries, including China, formally signed a report and recommendation of the judicial commission today, terminating nine months of labor.

Although a decision was reached to withhold details of the report and recommendations, American Minister James Van A. MacMurray appears to have revealed the essential parts when he said in his speech at Shanghai yesterday that it is necessary to continue extraterritoriality as a necessary evil.

Despite the secrecy imposed on the document, it is learned that the recommendations say that China's demands for renunciation of the unilateral extraterritoriality treaties have not been granted, adding that the foreign powers will be willing to consider discussion of the question of gradual relinquishment when China has created a modern court system and when justice is law, citing repeated changes in the administration, none of which has commanded provincial obedience.

The report emphasizes that China lacks a constitution, president, parliament, legal government and code of law, citing repeated changes in the administration, none of which has commanded provincial obedience. The recommendations include provisions whereby foreign lawyers may practice in the Chinese courts where foreign colonies exist, and a voluminous document gives in detail the illegal execution of civilians without trials, even while the commission was sitting.

The whole document is a stinging indictment of China's political chaos, tempered only by the necessity of obtaining the signature of China's delegate, Wang Chung-hui, a graduate of the Yale law school.

MARSHAL SPEAKER AT KIWANIS LUNCH

Edgar C. Snyder Talks on Necessity of Upholding the Federal Constitution.

Urging observance of the Constitution in its entirety, United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder addressed the members of the Kiwanis club yesterday at their weekly luncheon in the Washington hotel. The address was delivered in connection with "Constitution week" activities.

"We must abide by the Constitution whether we agree with all of its provisions or not," the speaker said. "Nullification of any of its provisions must not be permitted."

He cited the need for a "national viewpoint" and the elimination of "the false cry of class."

Guests of the club included John Marshall, Assistant Attorney General; Gus A. Schultz, presiding judge of the police court, and Vincent Lopez, of the New York Kiwanis club. Vincent Lopez, who is appearing at a local theater with his orchestra, played several numbers on the piano. John Sherry, newest member of the club, was presented with his pin and welcomed to the organization by Mark Lansburg, president.

Snow and Hail Hurt Canadian Grain Crops

Winnipeg, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Untold damage to crops and the deaths of a Saskatchewan farmer and his wife and two children, who were killed by a lightning bolt, followed a series of severe snow, hail and rain storms, which have swept western Canada for the past two days.

The unseasonable weather has resulted in a sharp rise in grain quotations, wheat having advanced 8 1/2 cents on the Winnipeg exchange during the past week.

It is reported that grain is sprouting in the shocks in districts where rains have prevented its threshing.

Manual Workers Buy Up Seats for Grand Opera

Chicago, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—The time is almost at hand when grand opera will be recognized as just as much a part of the life of the masses as the libraries, boulevards and parks, devotees believe.

The coming season of the Chicago Civic Opera company is to see a big schedule of special nights for industrial workers, the management announces.

Employees of a railroad have bought out the house for one night. Workers in two large packing establishments at the Union stockyards, and two big downtown department stores have tentatively closed arrangements. Other parties of bank employees, hotel employees and outlying business men's associations are forming.

British Royalty Dance With Their Servants

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Balmoral, Scotland, Sept. 16.—King George and Queen Mary, of England, tonight threw aside their royal dignity and supped and danced with the servants, tenants, "gillies" and retainers on the royal estate of Balmoral, Aberdeenshire and Birkhall. The function known as the "Gillies ball" took place in the ballroom of Balmoral castle, the scene of many previous occasions of royal splendor and magnificence.

King George does not dance, but Queen Mary led off the opening reel. The steward and Princess Mary and Lord Lascelles, her husband, repeatedly joined in the typically Scotch dances.

COMPLAINT ORDERED AGAINST EVANGELIST

the warrant for their arrest was prepared.

District Attorney Keyes issued the following statement:

"As the district attorney of the public of this community all of the facts and circumstances of this case and to prosecute before the bar of justice this woman and her associates is imperative.

"As the district attorney of the county, and its chief law enforcement officer, I have proceeded, from the beginning, with the thought in mind that Mrs. McPherson's position as the religious leader of a considerable number of people and the custodian of their Christian faith entitles her to protection from hasty or ill-considered action.

"From the time that the story that Mrs. McPherson had been found was broadcast to the country there has been an atmosphere of a gigantic hoax surrounding it. As time progressed this increased with the unbelievable story of the kidnapping and brazen activities of Mrs. McPherson and her friends to build up a case of alibi for her.

Must Have Public Hearing.

"It is my duty and I can do no less than to exert the full power of my office to bring this woman before the bar of justice in order that she may have a fair and public hearing. It is with regret that I take action against a person so high in the religious esteem of many persons, but the community and the members of all religions would welcome a fair and open hearing of a situation which has become a national scandal."

Orniston, who has been sought by officials for several months, will turn State's evidence, it was declared today by his attorney, S. S. Hahn.

Hahn, after leaving the district attorney's office late today, stated that the district attorney had nearly agreed to grant Orniston immunity. Investigation developed some time ago that the radio operator rented the cottage at Carmel four days before Mrs. McPherson disappeared and reached it at 3 o'clock in the morning with a begoggled woman. 13 hours after the evangelist dropped from sight at Ocean Park last May. The woman passed 10 days at the cottage.

Affidavit Told of "Miss X."

When Mrs. McPherson broadcast an appeal to Orniston, who was then in hiding, to clear her name in connection with reports that she was his companion at the cottage, a Chicago attorney forwarded an affidavit by the radio operator declaring that the woman was not Mrs. McPherson, but a mysterious Miss X.

Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the evangelist, was reached at the temple immediately after the arrest orders were issued by the district attorney.

"I haven't had time to think it over," she said, when asked for a statement in behalf of her daughter, who denied herself to visitors.

Agents for the district attorney's office, who visited Mrs. McPherson this afternoon, following her refusal to appear before Keyes on a plea of illness, said she appeared to be highly nervous and was suffering from an abscess on her face.

A statement from Angelus temple tonight said the evangelist had been instructed by her physician to remain in bed until further orders from him.

U. S. GUNBOAT IN FIGHT WITH CHINESE BATTERIES

Pigeon, Fired Upon, Replies

Above Hankow.

RED ARMIES PURSUE WU

Peking, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—

Authoritative foreign dispatches from Hankow say that the American gunboat Pigeon was fired on by Cantonese batteries on the afternoon of the 14th at Chenglingki, above Hankow on the Yangtze river. The Pigeon replied with machine guns. There were no American casualties.

Four foreign merchant ships are now at or near Chungking ready to evacuate foreigners there if necessary as a result of the rising anti-foreign sentiment growing out of the Wahhsien affair, when British gunboats and Chinese land troops exchanged shots with numerous casualties.

The Cantonese red armies have begun the pursuit of Marshal Wu Pei-fu and his troops, whom they thrust from Hankow a few days ago after a fortnight's siege. Large numbers of the Cantonese are moving northward from Hankow toward the border of Honan province, where Wu has been endeavoring to reorganize his forces with the expectation of reinforcements from Shantung province and promised aid of Sun Chun-fang, dictator of eastern China.

The Cantonese left a strong force to continue the siege of Wu Chang, sister city of Hankow, which continues in the hands of the northern troops of Wu Pei-fu, despite weeks of fighting.

London, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—A dispatch to the Daily Express from Shanghai says that 70 foreign women and 60 children who were isolated at Kikungshun, in the province of Honan, have been rescued by British naval tugs and have arrived in Hankow in slight condition. Their clothes were in tatters and they were without shoes.

Beauty Shop Girls Threaten to Strike

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Warfare, verbal and otherwise, has broken out in the beauty shops. It is a conflict over salaries and working conditions, on the surface, but underneath it is a struggle of the labor leaders to get firm control of the business.

It was announced this evening that unless a compromise was reached, 500 beauty shop girls would go on strike October 1, which would mean the closing of many establishments. Proprietors say if the demands of the union are met it will force them out of business any way, so they propose to fight.

Tyler, on Wet Planks, To Oppose Bingham

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Accepting a platform which had only two issues in it—decentralization and repeal of the Volstead act and eighteenth amendment—the Democratic convention today quickly selected a ticket for November election. The platform opposes "the return of the saloon."

Rollin U. Tyler, of Haddam, was nominated for United States senator, to oppose Hiram Bingham.

THE LEAGUE AND THE DEBTS.

Four allies of France were elected yesterday to seats in the council of the league of nations. They are Poland, Czechoslovakia, Roumania and Belgium. The league assembly also declared that Poland shall be reeligible for election at the end of the three-year term to which she has been elected. This is the circuitous method adopted by the league to place Poland permanently in the council, without saying so. An "unofficial spokesman" of Germany is reported by the Associated Press to have said:

Poland has been declared reeligible, but the world can bank on the fact that this does not assure her reelection.

Thus the master mind of the league, Premier Briand, of France, has succeeded in making French influence temporarily paramount in the control of the league and its works. The German delegation apparently did not have the heart to interpose objection to French domination of the league before the echoes of the Franco-German speeches of brotherly love had died away.

Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Roumania are satellites of France. Belgium may not be quite so subservient to French plans, in view of the breach that is opening between the two governments on the question of settling debts to America. The Belgian government is anxious to see the Berenger-Mellon arrangement ratified, in order to hasten the process of stabilizing the French franc, upon which the Belgian franc is largely dependent. If France should fail to ratify the debt settlement with the United States, thus imperiling the franc, Belgium will try to cut away from French finance by means of a loan obtained from England. Negotiations for this loan are already well advanced. The proceeds of the loan are to be employed for the bolstering of the Belgian franc.

Premier Briand is now in a position to use the council of the league in behalf of French interests, including maneuvers to bring about cancellation of war debts. Certain Americans, interested in foreign investments, are agitating for cancellation of the debts, so that the debtor countries may be freed from the load and be placed in a position to pay their private borrowings from Americans, as well as to borrow more. It is quite within the possibilities that the league council will ultimately offer its friendly counsel in behalf of universal cancellation, for the sake of "world peace." This will not be done, however, until the league has lost hope of drawing the United States into the European political situation through the world court.

DEMOCRATS DISAGREE.

The ratification of the French debt settlement is to come up for consideration and action shortly after the Senate reconvenes in December. Statements by men influential in the Democratic organization indicate there is such a divergence of opinion on this important question that opposition to the proposed settlement may be little more than perfunctory. A few days ago Senator Pat Harrison came home from France vowing vengeance on any and all persons who thought the terms of the debt agreement should be modified. He demanded that the French government should pay the debt "in full," and vouchsafed information that he brought back facts to fortify his position. Any public official who contended to the contrary, he asserted, would be defeated if he again ran for office.

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, likewise a returning tourist, charges cancellation propaganda to international bankers. He found the French people prosperous but unwilling to pay taxes. Bitter feeling toward Americans was evident. Senator Caraway holds that the United States can not with self-respect accept a part of the debt due it. If the debtor accompanies the payment with insults. He would have the President tell France to pay the debt it owes or repudiate it entirely, according to France's ideas of honor.

Former Gov. Cox, of Ohio, observes that the concern of this country since the end of the war has been "the money we can gather in from other countries." He has submitted his views in a carefully prepared statement. "Time was," he says, "when our foreign policy brought the name of America to grateful lips all over the world, and Americanism was a synonym for unselfishness and helpfulness. Now there is no foreign policy unless the collection agency we are hard-nosedly conducting can be regarded as its expression. Where we once were inspired to efforts to save the soul of civilization, we now insist on filing a mortgage upon it. Children yet unborn will be old men before we have exacted our pound of flesh." So Gov. Cox will be classed with Newton D. Baker as a cancellationist.

Here are three diverging Democratic views. What is the attitude of the Democratic party on this question?

CONSTITUTION DAY.

The Constitution of the United States was completed and signed by its framers 139 years ago today—September 17, 1787. The deputies from twelve States signed the document. Rhode Island alone withholding its consent. The Constitution was framed in 85 working days. There were 55 deputies in the convention, but the signers numbered only 39. Fifty-one of the deputies participated in the debates, according to Madison's journal.

The document signed on September 17, 1787, is in many respects the most remarkable composite output of the human mind. Its originality, its boldness of adventure, its vast scope, its foresight, its knowledge of human nature, and its novel application of political experience stamp it as a masterpiece. Its brevity is amazing. The most profound and acute intellects of the world have studied the Constitution with increasing admiration.

The Constitution contains so many original features that it would be difficult to enumerate them in moderate space. The most striking feature, of course, is the assertion by the people of the right to define and limit the powers of their government. Throughout the document is the calm assertion of supreme authority by the people. The majestic clauses which create the Congress, the executive, and the judiciary also set bounds to their respective powers. Instead of being a document emanating from governmental power, making concessions to the people, the Constitution is an expression of popular authority, conferring powers upon the creature of the people. Some men insist that the United States government was created by the States; but if they will ponder the first three words of the preamble they will be forced to admit that the authority emanates from the people. The deputies, appointed from the States, acted for the people; and the Constitution was ratified, not by State legislatures, but by popular conventions.

It is not strange that many changes in the Constitution, both unwise and perilous, are offered, since some of the wisest men in that historic convention offered plans that would have wrecked the whole structure, if adopted. An ever present danger in this country is the attempt to tinker with the Constitution, and depart from its fundamentals.

The Constitution was framed for America and not for the world. The central thought was the creation of a national government sufficiently strong to protect all. The men who framed it, originally interpreted it and gave it life, were preeminently nationalists.

In a patriotic address, the late Senator Lodge said of the builders of the Constitution:

When they dealt with elemental questions and fundamental principles, the same yesterday, today and forever in human history, I follow them because they have proved their wisdom by their success.

Every American, from the time he can read, should be taught to read and reread the Constitution, and it should be explained to him with endless patience. In the Constitution he finds the warrant and guarantee of his life and liberty. In it he finds the secret of his country's eternal life. As he grows in understanding he will grow in loyalty to the Constitution, and no earthly power will ever overturn that law if Americans themselves are loyal to it.

CHAIRMAN O'CONNOR'S VIEWS.

Chairman O'Connor, of the United States Shipping Board, told the British ship builders and owners at a recent luncheon in London that the United States intended to follow the example of all maritime nations and maintain a merchant marine capable of transporting at least one-half of America's foreign commerce, no matter what other nations did. "The United States does not propose," he said, "to deprive the American farmers and manufacturers of the right to have their commodities carried to foreign countries in American vessels." He added that the United States government intended to maintain an ocean merchant fleet until it could find private parties ready and willing to keep such a fleet in operation and at reasonable rates.

Mr. O'Connor, very properly, however, called the attention of his British audience to the unnecessary waste in ocean transportation arising out of excessive competition. "I wish to assure you," he declared, "that if invited, we will be glad to take our place at a conference table to coordinate and allocate the shipping of the world, thus eliminating this waste in competition."

The chairman reminded his hearers of the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission has the power to make lower railroad rates in the United States on goods for export than on goods for domestic destinations. "But we have never exercised that right," he added. Chairman O'Connor undoubtedly voices American sentiment in his stalwart statement of policy.

LIFE TERMS FOR CRIMINALS.

Two men branded as habitual criminals were sent to Sing Sing by a New York city magistrate this week for life upon their conviction for attempted burglary. They can not be paroled nor will they receive any liberty privilege because of good behavior.

In the enactment of the Baumes law by the last legislature the courts of New York have been given a power that will enable them to bring gunmen and thugs into complete submission. This law has "teeth" in every clause, and through its application society is to be protected and guarded.

This is the law that sent convicted criminals seeking new trials scurrying to prison before July 1, when it became effective. Something of the kind for the District of Columbia should be authorized by Congress. The Baumes law provides life imprisonment for criminals who have "served time" four or more times. Its command in that respect is mandatory, and no discretion is left to the district attorney or the court. It sweeps away former parole privileges and compels the ordinary prisoner to serve the full measure of at least the minimum of his sentence. As the law continues to be enforced and bandits and gunmen with criminal records realize that capture and conviction means prison for life, and others learn that stiff sentences can not be evaded through pleas of guilty, the effectiveness of the statute will increase.

The habitual criminal is a menace to any community. The court in New York, invoking the authority of the new law, said that "the only thing to do for the protection of society is to isolate or segregate these men in a place where they will be under surveillance for the rest of their lives." It will be interesting to note whether or not the new law will act as a deterrent of crime.

MONEY AND INVESTMENTS.

The Federal Reserve Board reports that during the first half of the year 1926 approximately $3,500,000,000 in American capital was invested in new business enterprises. Of this amount about $3,000,000,000 went into domestic enterprises and slightly more than $500,000,000 into foreign enterprises. Of the $500,000,000 in foreign enterprises, about $200,000,000 went to Europe, and the remainder largely to Canada and South America.

About three-quarters of the European investments were in municipal and industrial securities in Germany. Of the money that went into American securities, the sum invested in public utilities was as large as all other investments combined.

In connection with these large American investments in domestic and foreign securities, it is interesting to note that on September 1, 1926, the volume of money in the United States was $8,417,373,000, or $200,000,000 more than a year ago, and larger than at any time except in January, 1924. In 1913 the total stock of money in the United States was about $3,400,000,000. Today it is two and a half times that amount. The largest increase is in the stock of gold and Federal reserve notes. National bank notes have declined in volume more than 50 per cent in the last year.

In all its history, money was never so plentiful as now. The only danger is that it will be so easy as to invite excessive speculation and inflation.

THE DEMAND FOR OYSTERS.

The Virginia oyster season opened officially on Wednesday and thousands of "longers" are now gathering the choice crop of the sea to appease the longings of epicures. Oystermen say the demand this year exceeds anything known in the history of the industry.

Throughout the winter and summer both the public "rock" and private beds have been carefully inspected and guarded against all forms of possible contamination. Those Federal agencies in charge of the public health have certified to the sanitary conditions upon which the oysters now going to market have been grown, and to their wholesomeness as an article of inestimable food value. State and Federal bacteriologists, chemists and sanitary inspectors went their way from one shucking house to another, making sure the regulations controlling the production and handling of these bivalves are rigidly followed.

This has inspired a public confidence in the purity of the product, voiced in a demand that in these early hours of the season can scarcely be supplied. The oyster industry for a single season for Virginia and Maryland has an estimated value of $25,000,000. The oyster probably is the most popular autumn and winter dish on an American menu. Nowhere is it better prepared than here in the National Capital.

AN AMERICAN MURDERED.

The murder of Jacob Rosenthal, an American citizen, by bandits near Cuernavaca, Mexico, after a vain effort to extort a ransom from his relatives, is an illuminating example of the chaotic conditions that prevail in Mexico. Rosenthal and his family were en route from Cuernavaca to the City of Mexico when they were attacked. The other members of the party were released in order that they might go and gather funds for Rosenthal's ransom. Rosenthal himself was taken into the rough country in the mountains, only a few miles from the national capital, and finally murdered.

Although the government authorities sent pursuers after the bandits, it does not appear that either intelligence or diligence was exercised in the effort to apprehend the assassins. Thus another heavy charge is laid against the Calles government in its relations with the United States. The American government can not fail to exact from Mexico full reparation to the family of Rosenthal for this atrocious crime, committed almost under the shadow of Chapultepec. It is a hideous thought that the fair land lying between the City of Mexico and Cuernavaca is permitted to become the den of robbers and murderers, who waylay travelers without reprisals by officers of the law.

It is the duty of the United States government to ascertain without delay whether the Mexican government acted with due diligence in trying to rescue Rosenthal, or whether the pursuers were actually in sympathy with the bandits.

A democracy is a land where nobody is important enough to call anybody impudent.

There are no "idle rich." All are kept busy dodging people who want some of it.

The Worst Story I Heard Today—By Will Rogers

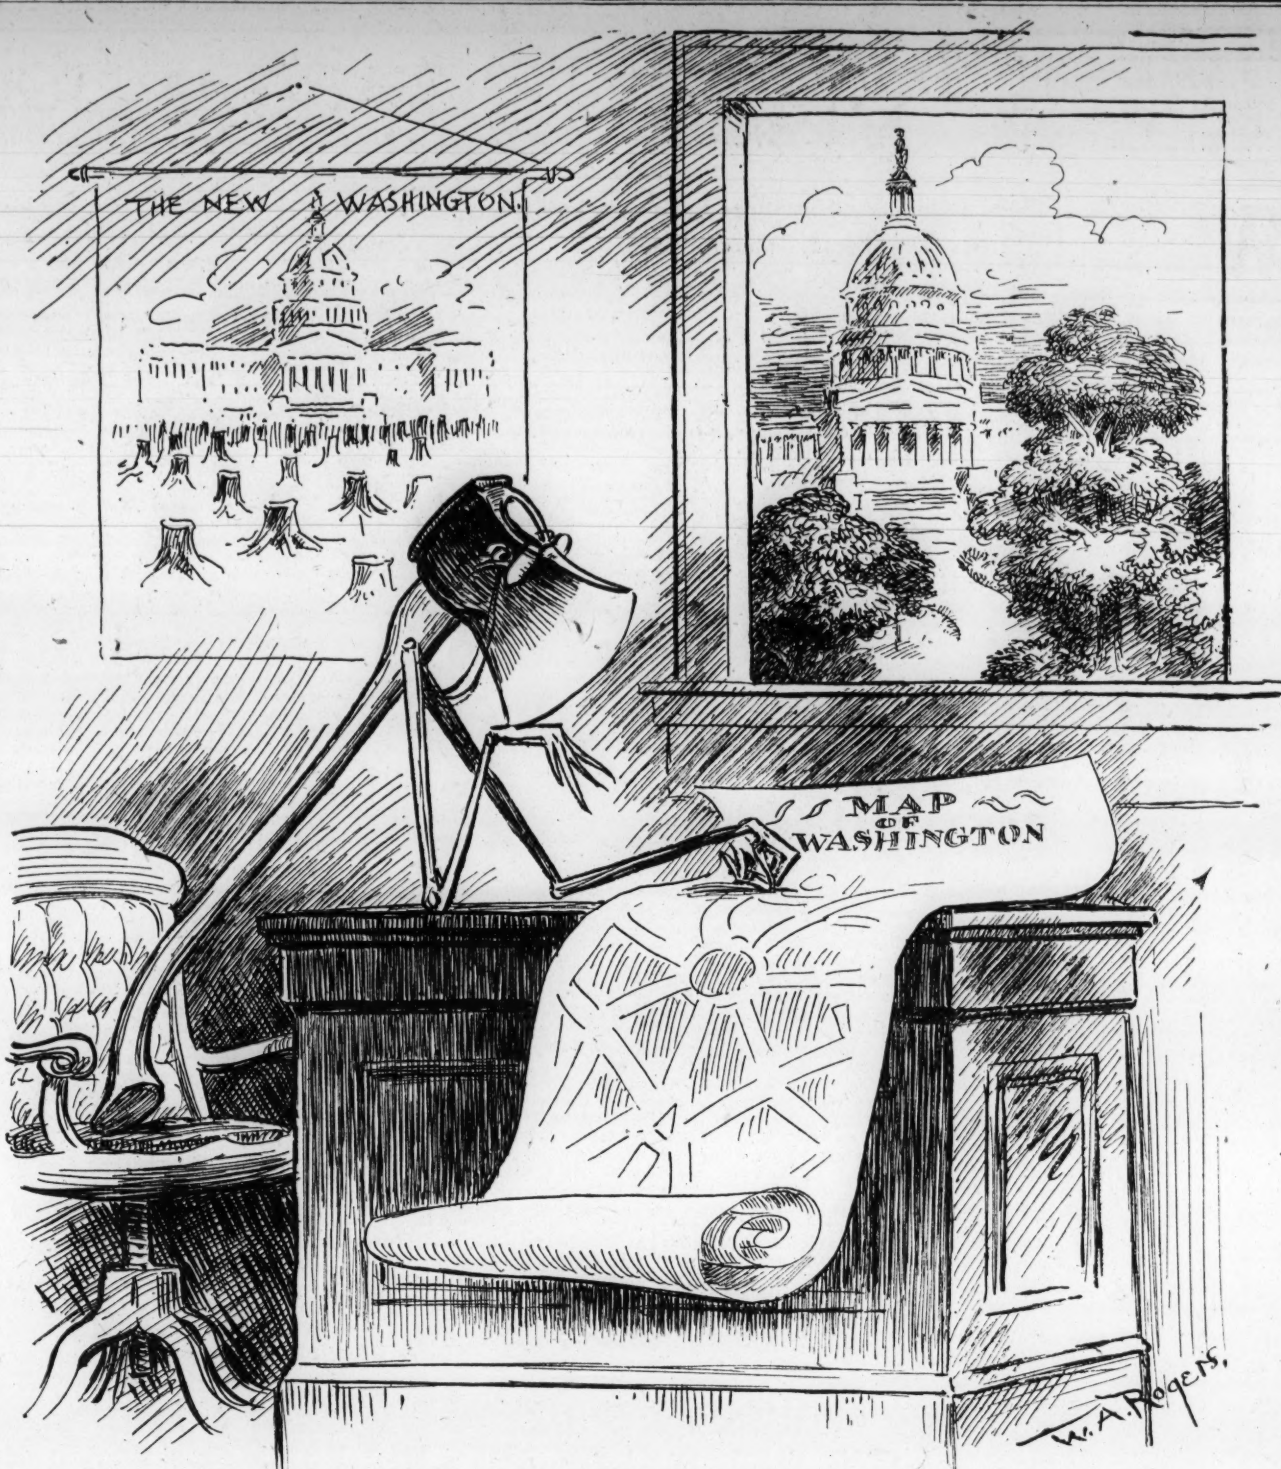

The Worst Joke I heard today was told to me by Dave Stamp. Dave is the little fellow that has written most all the music for Mr. Ziegfeld's Follies for 18 years. He is over here in London now; in fact, he is right here now in the room and I can't get him out. He tells me that he just married Edna Teedon, the Comedienne of the Follies. You all remember the pretty blond that is very funny. Well, they just got married and Dave left on his honeymoon three days later. She is still working in the show in New York. Dave says you can't beat married life—that it is great, that if you think a whole honeymoon is good you ought to take a half one. Being a musician all this comes under the heading of artistic license. He told me the latest New York joke and it runs as follows:

Two gentlemen were playing Golf, one of them for the first time. The other player landed in a Bunker of Sand and he went in there and took a mighty swing and the ball came out and landed fair and square in the cup. The new member went up and looked at it and said:

"Now I would like to see you knock it out of here."

Now, that is the latest from Broadway, New York City. And then you wonder why I don't hurry home.

PRESS COMMENT.

A Great Speech.

Ohio State Journal: All we know about what President Coolidge is going to do about 1928 is that he'll say either yes or no, in full, a day or two before the convention.

Merely Our Modesty.

Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph: We used to brag that we won the world war for Europe. It now develops that's whom we did win it for, but we no longer brag about it.

Marked Success.

Aiken Journal and Review: The Rainy Day club was organized by women 30 years ago to agitate for shorter skirts. Few movements have met with more marked success.

Ready for Ear Muffs.

Cincinnati Enquirer: With radicals like Brookhart and Blaine headed that way, Dawes may as well give up his ambition to put a silencer on the Senate and go out and buy a pair of ear muffs.

Wisconsin's "Crown Prince."

New York Commercial: The "Crown Prince" of Wisconsin seems unable to hold the radical forces together. The average citizen of that State sees no chance for himself if the senatorship is to be handed down from father to son indefinitely.

Self-Government Necessary.

Detroit News: Most of the governing is not done by governments. The great majority of the people must know how to behave themselves; must be willing to behave themselves and must influence most of the minority to behave themselves, or else the job of controlling the unruly few will be too big for any government.

Evils of Bureaucracy.

Brooklyn Eagle: One hesitates to say that the climax of bureaucracy has been reached in any one edict emanating from Washington. But there's sure an approximation to this when the Indian bureau undertakes to tell the redskins whose vast incomes it handles how much they may spend in burying their dead. There ought to be legislation compelling the officials to mind their own business.

News Values in Spain.

Philadelphia Inquirer: That news values are pretty much the same the world over is indicated by Spain. This accounts for Senator Simmin's promise that a tax reduction bill will be presented by the Democrats this fall.

False Hopes as an Issue.

New York Telegram: After combating the first effort of President Coolidge to make a rational reduction of the tax levies through the Mellon plan in the early months of his administration the Democrats of Congress two years or less, later on joined hands with the G. O. P. to effect the second tax cut.

Now, having noted the popularity which their rivals gained through

The Wisdom of Conrad

By GLENN FRANK

I HAVE quoted in this column a long paragraph from Joseph Conrad as a sort of letter of introduction into the world of beauty he created.

I took his books with me on an ocean voyage this summer as guide books to the soul of the sea. I wanted to see its moods through Conrad's eyes. But I soon found—I had read little of Conrad before—that Conrad is more than a romancer.

He is a philosopher; he knows the souls of men as he knows the ships of the seven seas.

He has wisdom and tolerance, the two things without which philosophy becomes a mere juggling of arguments.

His tolerance comes from knowing how complicated life is. Here are a few sentences I found myself underlining as I ran across them shining out as beads of wisdom on a cloth of beauty.

Fundamentalists and modernists, warring about the mathematical accuracy of this and that word in this and that creed, might well listen as Conrad, in his "Nostromo," says:

"The wisdom of the heart, having no concern with the erection or demolition of theories any more than with the defense of prejudices, has no random words at its command. The words it pronounces have the value of acts of integrity, tolerance, and compassion."

While we are watching the drama of revolution and restoration throughout the world, it is useful to listen as Conrad, in his "The Secret Agent," says:

"The way of even the most justifiable revolution is prepared by personal impulses disguised into creeds."

And, then, when we are planning our philanthropies, we might listen as Conrad, in his "Chance," says:

"There is a kind way of assisting our fellow creatures' which is enough to break their hearts while it saves their outer envelope."

And, again, in a time when so much is being made of the life-and-death importance of specific beliefs, it is well to remember Conrad's conviction that the world rests on a few very simple ideas, so simple that they must be as old as the hills. It was this he had in mind when he made Lord Jim say:

"Hang ideas! They are tramps, vagabonds, knocking at the back door of your mind, each taking a little of your substance, each carrying away some crumb of that belief in a few simple notions you must cling to if you want to live decently and would like to die easily!"

(Copyright, 1926)

the same readjustment of tax schedules to meet the changing internal conditions in the United States, the same old Democrats start out to build a campaign issue out of the need for further drastic tax cuts. This accounts for Senator Simmin's promise that a tax reduction bill will be presented by the Democrats this fall.

Water and Wealth.

Cleveland Times: Those Europeans who are jealous of our prosperity as compared with theirs, and who think we got it in some mysterious way by lending them money during the war, are letting their thinking lag behind the facts. It hasn't yet occurred to them that perhaps the reason why we are so rich is because we aren't drinking up our savings margins as we used to do.

Even the British workman who hoots our movies as impossible because they show our laborers going to work in motor cars, could probably buy a used car out of his annual drink bill. In fact, we've seen whole families going forth for happy Sundays in cars which look as if they had been bought for the price of one good, old-fashioned Saturday night.

Maine's Political Significance.

New York Evening World: There is no special significance in the result of the Maine election, which was a foregone conclusion. The State is traditionally Republican. The Republican majority of two years ago has been materially re-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Married Women Workers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are many women who are employed at present that do not need the positions. These women have husbands that are making large salaries.

There are so many, many young girls that really and truly need positions, that it is disheartening to the younger generation.

Not only do the married women keep the young girls and boys out of positions but also the married men. A CONSTANT READER.

Shaw on Vaccination.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Quite recently there was an item in our papers giving the simple living habits of George Bernard Shaw, who is now 70 years of age. Some other facts about Shaw may be of interest. He had smallpox when 25 years of age—in 1851. He says of it: "I cured myself. I went to bed, rested, lived sensibly, and my own body, not tainted by vaccination, conquered. In a few days I was again on my feet."

Of vaccination, he says: "Compulsory vaccination is a crime. It should be made a punishable offense. There is nothing more barbarous and more criminal than to give a disease to an innocent calf and shoot the filth scraped from its sores into helpless babies. In England vaccination is no longer compulsory. America is a hundred years behind the times."

The current number of Physical Culture gives an interesting interview with Mr. Shaw upon this subject, and other matters of interest.

The city council of Chicago recently passed an ordinance abolishing all forms of compulsory medication, and now no person must submit to the outrage of blood pollution to fill the coffers of the medical machine. H. BONNELL.

Washington, Sept. 15.

The League and the Senate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The League of Nations is in the same predicament that the United States Senate has brought about by its adherence to the rule of "unanimous consent," to which Vice President Dawes referred in his speech Wednesday evening. The London Times, commenting upon the matter, says:

"If the league is to be an efficient concern, there must be some safeguard against the abuse of the veto. Any state in the council or assembly must be able to bring about a decision by a single hostile vote. The members of the league being sovereign states, no other arrangement is possible. But there must be some check on a state that holds up the business of the whole league in an attempt merely to gain its individual ends by this form of pressure. . . . The obstructive veto is one of the anomalies that must work about out of the league system before the system can flourish."

The league is trying to do what the old American confederation tried to do a century and a half ago and what the Senate is trying to do now. It is a futile attempt. The Constitution, signed 139 years ago today, was framed to get rid of the foolish attempt to govern by unanimous consent. Both the league and the Senate will have to do away with the power of individual veto if they expect to do business.

FOUR-LANE ROADS PROPOSED TO MEET TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Chief of Public Roads Bureau
Sees Need of Relieving Slow Drivers.

CONDITION NOW CRITICAL
ON THREE BIG HIGHWAYS

Trucks Delay All Movement
When Routes Are Crowded
by Preventing Passing.

By WILLIAM P. HELM, Jr.
Thomas H. MacDonald, of Washington, chief of the bureau of public roads, which directs all Federal-aid highway construction throughout the country, is sponsor for two remarkable statements disclosing the imminent need of speeding up road building and the danger of a breakdown of the present highway facilities in certain congested sections. Mr. MacDonald is at present at Milan, Italy, attending the fifth international road congress. Within the past few days he addressed the congress and in the course of his address he described the situation as follows:

"Most of the main roads of the United States are two-way roads, 18 or 20 feet wide. The passing of a slow-moving vehicle by a faster vehicle is easily possible on such roads and presents no difficulty until the traffic increases to the point where the frequency of vehicles proceeding in the opposite direction is so great as to cause the drivers of overtaking vehicles to hesitate to pass.

"When this condition obtains, queues are rapidly formed headed by the slow-going vehicle and, as the difficulty and danger of passing becomes greater as the length of the queues increases, there is the tendency for the speed of all vehicles using the highway to be reduced to the speed of the slowest. In this way the number of vehicles which may safely pass over a highway in a unit of time may be reduced by half.

"This condition has already been reached on many of the important intercity highways. How general it may become is still a matter of speculation. But the motor vehicle registration statistics provide comfort for those who are inclined to be optimistic.

In other words, on many of the most important highways in the country, the efficiency of the road is cut in half, from time to time, by a combination of slow-going vehicle—truck or heavy motorist—and a narrow roadway. The answer, as Mr. MacDonald sees it, is proposed by another MacDonald—John A. highway commissioner of Connecticut—as follows:

"That special motor truck roads be built, or, as an alternate solution, that existing two-lane roads be widened to four lanes."

Backed by Federal Chief,

With that proposal, the Federal-aid chief is in thorough accord. Discussing it, as offered by the Connecticut commissioner, he says:

"He limits its application, however, to those highways which have a peak load of at least 2,000 vehicles an hour or to those on which, because of the presence of many slow-moving vehicles, the speed of traffic is greatly reduced."

There are other conditions proposed, such as removal of bottle necks, and after discussing them, the Federal-aid head continues:

"There can be no question of the soundness of the proposal. As may be judged from the fact that its application is suggested only for roads carrying more than 2,000 vehicles in the peak hour, the conditions requiring such treatment are not yet general, although the continued rapid increase in truck and passenger car registration in all sections suggests that the problem may soon have to be dealt with in the vicinity of a number of cities."

Three Congested Areas.

And then comes Mr. MacDonald's second revealing disclosure:

"At present, however, conditions may be said to have reached a critical stage in only three limited regions," he continues. "The first is adjacent to New York and between that city and Philadelphia, 90 miles away; the second is between Chicago and Detroit, the center of the motor vehicle industry, and the third is between Los Angeles and San Francisco."

In those three populous sections, Mr. MacDonald asserts, conditions have reached "a critical stage." Mr. MacDonald tells of present and projected plans for relief in each case, including, in the case of New York a four-lane roadway to New Haven and the tunnel for vehicular traffic under the Hudson river, both of which are under construction.

"The 13-mile highway between the vehicular tunnel entrance to New York and the neighboring cities of Jersey City, Newark and Elizabeth, now under construction * * * is the first section of what will in all probability be a similar highway, 90 miles in length, between New York and Philadelphia."

Superhighway Planned.

As to the section, Detroit to Chicago, Mr. MacDonald says: "The so-called superhighway plans of Wayne county, Mich., in which Detroit is located, are but the beginning of the improvement which will extend from that city to Chicago, to be constructed by extension outward from each city as the need becomes imperative."

And as to the congested section, Los Angeles to San Francisco:

"The California plans, although still in the formative stage, will be designed to separate the through and local traffic. One suggestion which has received considerable support, contemplates the acquisition of a 100-foot right of way between Los Angeles and San Francisco as nearly as possible free from curvature. The central 30 feet would be devoted to the through motor way on which speed as high as 50 miles an hour would be permitted."

Such is the beginning of the superhighway system which is bound to come, at heavy expense, if the automobile users of the country are to utilize their machines at fair efficiency of operating conditions and with a fair degree of comfort. There are, of course, still other problems. One of them is the heavy Sunday traffic in the vicinity of large cities, traffic which often chokes the roadways and robs the journey of all pleasure. This, Mr. MacDonald says, will decline "as the novelty of driving wears off." He makes haste to add:

"The decline may be hastened, perhaps, by encouraging those in search of pleasure and recreation to find it at State controlled bathing beaches, golf courses, tennis courts and parks located at suitable points within easy reach of the cities, rather than in driving on the main highways. Such a plan is now under consideration by the State roads commission for Maryland for the relief of peak congestion on the main roads near the city of Baltimore."

Atlantan Offered Stiff Struggle by Former Champion.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST

SHORT HILLS, N. J., Sept. 18.—The semifinal round in national amateur tournament will be played tomorrow morning between George Von Elm, of Los Angeles against George Dawson, of Chicago in the upper half of the bracket and Francis Quimet, Boston, and Robert "Chick" Jr., Atlanta in the lower half. Unlike the totally unexpected upset occurs tomorrow the finalists will be Jones and Von Elm, a result which has been anticipated ever since the drawing for match play was announced.

It is true that Jones, after an all-day Evans gave Bobby Jones a thirty-fourth green this afternoon just as the mountains which surround the course were growing into deeper shadows with the setting sun.

It is true that Jones was at times seriously threatened, but Evans' spectacular comeback lifted him to the top of the game to hold the narrow margin of lead which he obtained in the morning round.

It is no exaggeration to say that there is no golfer in the world who could have defeated Jones today, for the

He met an opponent worthy of his steel for although his card for the morning round was 70, 27 strokes under par, he was only up on Evans when the players came in to lunch. In the morning struggle they halved seven consecutive holes in par figures and this included the bulldog grip with which

In the midst of the monotonous perfect shots which Jones played the two rounds there were three spectacular exhibits. On the seventeenth hole this morning he played

This afternoon, on the eighth hole, he pushed his drive to the rough on the right. Between the ball and the green, 80 yards more away, was an enormous chestnut tree, as tall as a church and with branches spreading like the tree made famous in Longfellow's poem. It was impossible to place around it, for the ball would have gone into the rough far to the left of the green, so Bobby took a quick and carried the ball away

This was really the fatal thrust for Evans, for with Jones now for him to halve the thirty-third hole and thus leave himself dormant. The final hole, the short sixteen was easily won by Jones who landed his ball on the green, while Evans sliced into a trap. Then the

BATTLE IN THE RING AT MARLBORO

Rural Gossip Scores in Opener

Uncle Abe Takes Lead and Wins Sprint With Ease.

Rags First Home in Third; Beverwyk Falls to Knees.

Special to The Washington Post.

MARLBORO RACE TRACK, Md., Sept. 16.—Today's feature, a sprint of 6 1/2 furlongs, found Battle Shot home in front of a field of five, although at one part of the journey it looked as if the winner had scant chance. Lieutenant Farrell was away winging with Battle Shot in close pursuit. Going down the back stretch the Pacemaker opened up a lead of 5 lengths and he looked all over a winner. In the meantime Battle Shot was still running second, Mexican Pete third, and Muskallonge, the favorite, and Black Top trailing the field. Swinging for home, Lieutenant Farrell still had an advantage of two lengths but he was shortening his stride. Battle Shot caught him a sixteenth of a mile from home and drew away to win with ease. Mexican Pete was much the best of the others but he was well beaten off by the first pair.

The first race of the day, a dash of 5 1/2 furlongs for maidens of all ages, went to Rural Gossip, a 2-year-old who took the lead at the break and had every post a winning one. Rock Sugar was second and Dalryda third. Rock Sugar looked like a winner when the field swung for the stretch but he hung in the drive for home and was beaten by a head.

UNCLE ABE, a consistent one around the half-mile oval, chased home a field of six others in the second race, another sprint of 5 1/2 furlongs.

Beating his field to the first turn, Uncle Abe opened up a lead of two lengths and had every post a winning one. Laughing Lass, who pursued the pace all the way made her bid in the run through the stretch. The Peruvian was third, but well beaten off by the first two.

A lot of mud kicked kept Beverwyk, the favorite, from winning the third race. Away not as alertly as usual, Beverwyk ran on the heels of other horses at the first turn and went to his knees. He was quick to recover his stride, but not until he had lost several lengths. In the meantime, Freeman and Rags were well in advance of the field, with the race between them. Freeman led the pack into the stretch, but Rags gradually wore him down in a drive and won going away.

Beverwyk covered an immense gap to take third money and would have been second in a few more jumps.

Evelyn Sawyer won her second consecutive victory of the meeting in taking down the major portion of the purse in the fourth race at 7 furlongs. Made the favorite in the wagering, Evelyn Sawyer went to the front at the rise of the back stretch and held on well when Chow Chow and Red Wine challenged. The latter two finished second and third, respectively.

Red Wine might have been closer had he been away with his field. He dropped when the break came and was away last. Shanks saved ground with him all the way, but he could not get up.

RIALTOS AND AUTHS CLASH AT BARRACKS SUNDAY

Knicks Meet St. Joseph Again

Sandlot Season Nears Curtain With Choice Attractions.

Week-Day Finalists Start Last Series on Tuesday.

THE curtain for sandlot baseball here is just around the corner, but in keeping with the successful season it has enjoyed the finale will not lack a "kick." The last lap of the Capital City league's unlimited series will start Sunday with the Rialtos, winners of Section B, meeting the Auths, titleholders of Section C, at 3 p. m. at Washington barracks.

What is expected to be the final game of Section A will also be played Sunday. The Knickerbockers will face the St. Joseph team at 3 o'clock on the Friendship field. In week-day league circles, the three-game series between Fashion Shop and General Accounting Office alone remains on the calendar. This will open Tuesday on the South Ellipse diamond. Both the Sunday and week-day teams have as their objective, in addition to the championships, The Washington Post cups and sets of fifteen individual medals which will be awarded with the trophies.

It has been decided by Capital City officials that the Knickerbockers, who, it might be said, are "in" play St. Joseph. The latter team has a protest pending, which, if allowed, give it a mathematical chance to tie the league leaders.

The clash of the Rialtos and Auths should not only draw one of the largest crowds of the season but should be productive of high-class baseball. The appearance of these teams in the finals for the Sunday title will mark the first time that so-called "outside" teams have had a crack at the banner. The Rialtos have had a team for a number of seasons, while the Auths, perhaps the youngest unlimited combination in the city, jumped into the "big time" after winning the senior Capital City championship and, incidentally, it has not lost a game in organized circles.

TAKOMA TIGERS BOOKED. The Takoma Tigers will encounter the Falls Church nine tomorrow at 2 o'clock, and the Corinthians Sunday at 3 o'clock. Both games will be played on the Silver Spring field. Players are requested to meet at the field for both games at 1:30 o'clock.

TILDEN LOSES IN TITULAR TOURNAMENT

Three French Netmen Making Strong Bid for U. S. Crown.

from the shock of Tilden's defeat when another flashing French racketeer stepped to the fore to eliminate William M. Johnston, the veteran little Californian who has been the champion's foremost rival and his partner in Davis cup triumphs over seven straight seasons.

Jean Borotra, the colorful "Bouncing Basque" and holder of the Wimbledon championship, brought about the day's closing upset with a smashing rally that carried him to victory over the tiring Johnston in five sets, decided by scores of 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Altogether, it was as dark and gloomy a day as American tennis ever has known, for Rene Lacoste, third of the major French threats, forged his way to the semifinals by overcoming the United States Davis cup captain, Richard Norris Williams, in straight sets, 6-0, 6-3, 8-6.

Vincent Richards, youngest of America's "Big Four," was the only one of the quartet to escape defeat in the French onslaught, and now stands out as Uncle Sam's sole hope of keeping the national tennis title on home shores. The convincing manner in which Richards disposed of Jacques Brugnon, however, at 6-2, 6-1, 6-2, convinced observers he is at the top of his game for the fight against the French invasion.

Tomorrow Richards faces Borotra, Johnston's conqueror, in one semifinal, while Lacoste and Cochet battle to determine the other finalist.

Only once before, in 1903, when it was captured by the British crack, Hugh Doherty, has America's premier tennis crown passed to foreign hands. Never before, however, has it faced as strong a challenge, in numbers or ability, as it does now.

Tilden and Johnston both were beaten today with victory seeming in the grasp of each, but neither had quite the ability to come through in the face of the impetuous attacks of their foreign rivals. Tilden, on the top wave of a brilliant rally in the final set, seemed a certain winner when he led at 6-5 in games on his own service; but, desperately as he fought, he was unable to check the suddenly brilliant surge that carried Cochet to triumph in the first match he has ever played with the American champion.

Throughout the tense fight for points in the last three games the Frenchman played inspired, unbeatable tennis, turning the champion's most furious drives into placements and smothering his rival's usually powerful service. It was a fitting climax in the final game to have Cochet, with a series of marvelous recoveries, angle Tilden's returns for three straight placements that decided the match.

Tilden's downfall was the climax, not only of the most disastrous season he has experienced since reaching the heights but was a final touch to the decline begun last Saturday when he twisted a knee during the Davis cup match he lost to Rene Lacoste.

The necessity of favoring this kneeaffected Tilden's game throughout the early rounds of the tournament, but it played little, if any part, in his defeat today. None of his old dash or agility was missing when it came to the pinch, and to critics there was no doubt that Cochet's marvelous stroking, his clever mixture of shots and unflinching steadiness at critical moments decided the battle.

TODAY'S was Tilden's eighth defeat of 1926, four each coming at the hands of American and French rivals. Richards, with three, and Lacoste, with two victories, top the list, with one each to the credit of Cochet, Borotra and A. H. Chapin, jr.

Johnston's defeat marked the first time he has ever lost to a French opponent.

He seemed headed for straight set victory over Borotra only to have the Basque suddenly gain control of his flashing volleys and put on an uphill triumph in which finally proved to be chiefly a test of endurance. Both were near exhaustion in fiercely fought sets, Borotra falling several times in his rushes to the net, but the Basque had more reserve than his rival in the end.

Johnston had a lead of 3-1 on games in the final set, but dissipated this when his service failed him.

He fought back courageously after a slump, to make it 4-4, but succumbed quickly in the last two games.

The statistical story of "Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston's defeats by their French tennis rivals, Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra, are told in the following recapitulations of the stroke analysis:

Whites Swamp Reds; Lose Margetts, Star

War Whites swamped the War Reds in the final practice session before the fall polo tournament, 12 to 2, yesterday. The Reds held their own in the first two chukkers when they scored their two markers, but after this it was all War Whites.

In spite of their victory the Whites were none too cheerful yesterday, as it was learned that Col. Margetts, their mainstay, is not likely to play in the high goal tournament which starts Saturday. Col. Margetts received an injury to his wrist last Saturday, and it pains him to grasp a mallet. Maj. Hoyle will play back in Col. Margetts' position.

DEMPSEY GRINS AS NEW NOSE BLEEDS AFTER BLOW

Champ Works To Perfect Hooks

Remodeled Proboscis Responds for First Time in Training.

Jack to Finish Heavy Work Soon; Scribes Will Be Barred.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Jack Dempsey's remodeled nose, in which he invested $10,000, went the way of all pugilistic noses today. It lost blood for the first time, but it proved its shock-absorbing strength. Dempsey was stepping through a lively first round with Tommy Loughran when the Philadelphia 175-pounder suddenly crossed a right squarely to Dempsey's nose. Within a few seconds blood began to trickle down the champion's lip, but he continued boxing, going another round with Loughran and two with Martin Burke.

He started off with a round against Frankie Carpentier, making his usual five rounds. The smash on the nose did not affect his breathing. In his dressing room the champion said with a grin:

"I only goes to show that my nose is human after all. Also, it convinced me that it can stand up under a good shock. See, it's all O. K."

With that remark, Dempsey gave his nose a healthy twist to prove that nothing serious had happened to it.

Dempsey's left eye is nicely colored purple and green, with a tint of blue, as a result of his workout with Loughran yesterday. The disclosure that Dempsey has been indulging in strictly secret boxing practice with big Bill Tate, a 230-pound negro sparring partner, was verified today. The champion, it developed, has been working with Tate during the mornings since last Monday, with only two or three trusted handlers looking on.

THE object was to enable Dempsey to perfect a left hook to the liver and also a defense for a right upper-cut.

Dempsey, working in the presence of the newspaper men today, did not cut loose against any of his three sparring mates except in his first round with Loughran. He finished Tommy into the ropes, ripping short punches to the body and straightened him up with a left hook and a right to the chin.

Tomorrow Dempsey intends to take another lay-off, resuming work on Saturday. He also will train on Sunday and Monday, doing only light work on Tuesday. He intends to finish his heavy training on Monday, taking things lightly on Tuesday, and working in strict privacy with the rates of the dog track closed to the newspaper men.

RICKARD HARASSED BY NEW THREATS TO HALT BOUT IN COURT

"Taxpayer's" Suit Is Launched Against Purse of Match.

Kearns Behind Movement to Hold Up Boxer's Money.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Determined to stop the boxing bout scheduled to bring Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney together at Philadelphia a week from tonight, B. C. Clements, Chicago promoter, left Chicago today for the Sequoyia city armed with court orders and legal talent. Clements, whose claim that he holds a contract binding Dempsey to meet Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, before engaging any other opponent, was upheld last week by an Indiana court, declared that he would call upon the Pennsylvania boxing commission tomorrow to effect the Dempsey-Tunney match off.

If the Keystone State commission declines to do this upon presentation of the Indiana court's injunction, Clements plans to go into the State courts of Pennsylvania to seek a writ that would forbid payment of any money to Dempsey for fulfillment of his allegedly invalid contract to meet Tunney.

CLEMENTS' confidence in the effectiveness of the Indiana writ is borne of the fact that it is a recognition of property right, and not a boxing injunction. With only seven days in which to act, he plans one more step, if all others fail. This would be, he said, the reopening of Federal court action at Denver, Colo., in the State where Dempsey started training for reentry into the ring. A Federal court injunction upholding his property right in the Dempsey-Wills contract would certainly be applicable in Pennsylvania, he asserted.

GENE TUNNEY FORCED BY DELANEY

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 16 (By A. P.).—Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light-heavyweight, featured today's boxing program for Gene Tunney. Delaney, who has met Dempsey's challenger twice in real bouts, made his debut in Stroudsburg by giving Tunney one of the best workouts he has had since he started training for his bid at the championship.

Delaney dashed in at the outset and never let up until his two rounds were concluded. He proved that he knows something about fighting close up and this, in the opinion of some of the experts, is just what Tunney needs for one class in his boxing school.

Delaney popped one right to the face that the challenger only partly avoided and the St. Paul lad took some harder punches than Tunney has been tossing about the training ring.

The hard working Billy Vidabeck also stepped out in his two rounds and altogether Tunney got four trips from real boxing. He was on edge for his work after a two-day layoff. He had planned earlier in the week to have a holiday tomorrow but as he was ill yesterday he announced that he expected to box tomorrow.

Tommy Gibbons, once a great light-heavyweight, and Benny Leonard, retired lightweight champion, were at the ringside in the guise of newspaper reporters. As they were present incognito they gave no opinions as boxers.

Leonard suggested that it was a bit early for a forecast, while Gibbons, who met both champion and challenger, said he had not seen enough of the contestants for the championship in their 1926 editions to venture a guess as to their respective chances.

Dr. Robert Shea, New York surgeon, was a visitor today, but in a personal rather than professional capacity he declared that the challenger's lip is causing him no worry. Dr. Fred J. Baer, East Stroudsburg osteopath, is another addition to the training staff.

Senator Midget Nine Downs Centrals, 30-7. The Senator Midgets overwhelmed the Central Midgets yesterday, 30 to 7. Davidson, of the winners, smacked out three singles and a triple in as many times up. The losers, also of the victors, hit a homer. Cappelli did the flinging for the Senators and allowed eight hits.

Maj. Hesse Instructs Precincts
to Assign Men to Crossings
Near Institutions.

CALLS ON WHOLE FORCE
TO PROTECT STUDENTS

Commanders to Make Personal Survey and List Locations Needing Vigilance.

Details of final preparations for protection of school children from traffic hazards were contained in a general order issued to the police yesterday by Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of the department, and printed in pamphlet form for wide distribution. The order read as follows:

"The public schools will resume sessions commencing Monday, September 20, 1926, and to the end that the fullest possible measure of protection may continue to be afforded to the 70,000 children attending the public, parochial and other private schools, the Metropolitan police department and the director of traffic, in cooperation with school authorities, have designated certain important street intersections which are considered specially dangerous because of their proximity to school buildings, and it is therefore specifically directed that officers be stationed at such intersections between the hours of 8:30 and 9 a. m. and from 3 p. m. until such time thereafter as the schools near the crossings indicated have closed and the children have departed, and also during recess hours whenever men are available for such service."

Corners to Be Protected.

The intersections where commanding officers were ordered to station patrolmen, and the schools to be served thereby, were listed as follows:

Northwest section—Eighteenth street and Florida avenue, Morgan school; Eighteenth street and Massachusetts avenue, Force and Adams schools; Sixteenth and Lamont streets, Johnson and Powell junior high schools; Sixteenth and Euclid streets, H. D. Cooke school; Tenth and H streets, Webster school; Tenth and U streets and Vermont avenue and Phelps schools; Vermont avenue and R street, Garrison school; Sherman avenue and Kenyon street, Hubbard school; Sixth and P streets, Columbia junior high, Polk and Henry schools.

First and P streets, Armstrong Technical High, Slater and Langston schools; First street and New York avenue, Dunbar High and Shaw junior high schools; Eighteenth and M streets and Seventh and P streets northwest, Columbia Junior High, Polk and Henry schools; Eleventh and Harvard streets, Wilson Normal and Ross schools; Wisconsin avenue and Albemarle street, Tenley school; Connecticut avenue and M street, Sumner and Magruder schools.

Southeast section—Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street, Hine Junior High, Wallach and Towler schools; Pennsylvania avenue and Second street, Lincoln, Brent and Dent schools.

Ordered to List Schools.

Following the list of corners to be guarded, the general order continues:

"Precinct commanders will again make a personal survey of their respective precincts and will establish locations of all public, parochial and private schools and again compile and maintain an up-to-date list of such schools, with list of street intersections contiguous thereto, and will whenever possible arrange to assign men to such intersections whenever existing conditions with regard to traffic and movement of children to and from such schools make such action advisable; it being understood, however, that the intersections and schools especially listed above must be covered at the times stated."

"It is the wish of the department, the director of traffic and the school authorities, of the press and of all commercial and civic bodies, that the school year will pass without any record of children meeting with accidents, and it is directed that a copy of this order be furnished every member of the metropolitan police force, and that a sufficient number be provided to permit distribution to teachers; and it is further directed that every member of the metropolitan police force, regardless of the character of his assignment and whether on or off duty, shall be at all times alert in safeguarding the lives of the city's children. Whenever a child or wherever groups of children are observed at any point of congestion, regardless of the hour and time or the occasion, it shall be the duty of any member of the metropolitan police force to assist such child or groups of children to their destination in safety."

"Certainly, no duty transcends in importance, no obligation can be considered more pressing, and no responsibility should be more readily accepted, than that of helping in the great work of safeguarding the nation's children, and the metropolitan police department is in a position to materially aid in affording to the children that measure of protection which will serve as a guarantee of their safety and physical well being while using the city's streets and highways."

Condemnation proceedings have been instituted to obtain the land and $10,000 has been set aside to cover the cost of the property, but the action taken yesterday will permit the government to go ahead with the filtration project. The land is owned by the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Co.

SUIT TO TIE UP SALARY OF LOPEZ FILED HERE

Hitz Signs Order Directing Palace Management to Appear Today.

BROUGHT BY RECEIVERS

Efforts to tie up the salary of Vincent Lopez, noted orchestra leader and jazz artist, who is appearing this week at Loew's Palace theater, met with partial success yesterday when Justice Hitz, in the District Supreme court, signed an order directing the management of the Palace to appear in court this morning to show cause why they should not be prohibited from paying Lopez his salary.

The order was granted on the request of George D. Brabson, attorney for the receivers of the Vincent Lopez, Inc., of New York, which recently filed a petition in the Southern district of New York in involuntary bankruptcy.

Brabson told the court that Lopez's Washington engagement was not authorized under his agreement with the Vincent Lopez, Inc., but that he had come to Washington on his own accord.

Brabson contended that the money should go to the receivers in bankruptcy, so Justice Hitz, in waiting the customary two days' notice allowed in such cases, ordered the Palace theater management to appear in court this morning.

RESERVE BLOC AIMS TO SPEED LAGGARDS

Insurgent Group Plans to Prod
Disinterested Officers at Convention.

Reserve officers may have to "snap into it" if plans to be attempted by a bloc at the convention of the Battery Park Community Club, which is to be held in Norfolk, Va., next month, materialize.

There is a movement to have reserve officers who are able to attend training and who fall to do so, or who otherwise fail to take an interest in their work, dropped from the reserve list. The bloc is reported as having no quarrel with officers whose civil business prevents absence from training, but it alleges too many high reserve officers forget their responsibilities and are blocking promotion of others.

A reserve corps of 50,000 competent officers is better than 100,000 half developed, the insurgents state. In the meantime, the War Department is reported as strictly neutral.

Gas Pipes "Tapped," Detective Charges

Although the gas in the home of Herman W. Pettigill, 31 years old, 2316 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was cut off two months ago, police report, he has not wanted for gas. Central Office Detective Arthur Scrivener acted as "gas inspector" yesterday in arresting Pettigill on a charge of false pretenses.

Scrivener went into the house armed with a warrant, charging that Pettigill had passed an alleged bogus check for $50 on George W. Bennett, of the Farmers & Mechanics bank, under false pretenses. The detective discovered, police say, that the gas pipes had been "tapped" and a rubber hose was conveying the supply into the house.

BUS COMPANY ASKS INCREASE IN RATES; CITES $8,443 LOSS

North American Co. Seeks Straight 10-Cent Fare Before Utilities Commission.

CHARGES FORMER OWNER FAILED TO LIST EXPENSE

$47,000 Profit Shown in 1925
Offset by $43,000 Costs,
President Declares.

The North American Co. bought the Washington Rapid Transit Co. from Leon Arnold, believing it had earned net profit of $47,000 in 1925 and promptly agreed to a reduced fare. Yesterday the company alleged before the public utilities commission that more than $43,000 worth of 1925 operation expenses had failed to find their way to the financial statement of the bus concern and that in reality the net profit last year was only $4,249.17. The company asked that the fare be increased again.

"Does this mean that you thought the line was worth more than it was when it was bought?" was asked of E. D. Merrill, new president of the bus company. Mr. Merrill replied that it did, and added that it seemed wise to so state to the commission, otherwise it might appear that the present management was not able to earn as much money with the buses as the former management.

Ask Straight 10-cent Fare.

The occasion was the opening session of a public hearing on the petition of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. to be permitted to charge a straight 10-cent cash fare, instead of six tokens for 50 cents.

Mr. Merrill introduced a large number of statistical exhibits, indicating that the property of the company should be valued at $855,000; that it suffered an operating deficit during the first six months of this year amounting to $8,443.36, and that if all passengers during that period had paid 10 cents each, there would have been a profit of $14,939.61.

The commission took under advisement the mass of figures submitted and said a further hearing would be had when its staff had analyzed them.

Midcity Supporters Argue for Market

Having heard the advantages of the Southwest site for a relocated farmers' market extolled last Monday, the market committee of the National Capital park and planning commission yesterday listened to a delegation of mid-city site advocates present arguments in favor of that location. A. J. Driscoll, president of the Mid-City Citizens association, headed the delegation. The central location of the mid-city site and its convenient nearness to commerce and transportation were advanced in favor of that selection. The market committee will hear all interested groups put forth arguments for favored sites before making a recommendation to the park and planning commission, October 15.

D. C. Pool to Answer Receivership Action

The management of the District of Columbia swimming pool was ordered yesterday to show cause in the District Supreme court Monday why it should not be placed in receivership. The order was the result of action by the Fred Drew Co. against the Columbia Sports & Amusement Co., Inc., the District of Columbia Sports & Amusement club and Samuel Bachells for $15,000 in payment for construction work at the pool.

An attachment was issued covering all equipment of the pool, including even soap and towels. S. H. Weiss, manager of the pool, was appointed custodian of the property by the United States marshal. The pool will remain open, it was said last night.

Bridge at Tidal Basin To Be Closed 2 Weeks

Inlet bridge at the Tidal basin, in West Potomac park, will be closed to traffic, beginning Monday for approximately two weeks, while new road surfacing is being laid on the bridge, which has been widened, the office of public buildings and public parks announced yesterday. This will necessitate the rerouting of speedway traffic, formerly crossing at that point, to roads running completely around the Tidal basin until the work is completed.
